120 Guerrillas Die In Bloody Viet Battle

(Times News Services)
SAIGON — More than 120 Communist Viet Cong were killed and six Americans were dead or missing today in one of the bloodiest engagements in the Mekong Delta in months, U.S. officials said.

Initial reports indicated that South Vietnamese government forces suffered more than 60 casualties, including about 15 killed.

The confirmed American dead were a U.S. Army officer and a U.S. Navy officer. Their deaths brought to 323 the number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since December 1961.

Four U.S. Army helicopter crew members were missing and believed dead. Their aircraft was hit by 50-calibre Viet Cong machine-guns and exploded in the air.

The helicopter had been providing cover for a downed South Vietnamese Air Force fighter-bomber. The South Vietnamese pilot's fate was not known.

A second U.S. Army helicopter was also shot down while covering the same crash. But all four crew members were rescued and were reported only slightly injured.

Heavy fighting was reported still in progress. The scene was the Ca Mau Peninsula, about 120 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. Air Force B-57 jet bombers flew 16 strikes against the Viet Cong in the area today.

Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, 32 American strikes were flown, making today one of the heaviest days of air operations in South Viet Nam to date.

A heavy haul of Communist weapons was reported captured at Ca Mau, including several recoilless rifles, at least four machine-guns and several score rifles.

The action began Sunday when 24 U.S. Army helicopters escorted by 13 armed helicopters landed rangers and regular South Vietnamese soldiers in several attack zones. They were met with immediate heavy fire, and a battle in the paddy fields has been raging ever since.

The U.S. Army officer, an adviser to a ranger battalion, was killed in the action Sunday.

Other heavy fighting was reported in Tay Ninh province, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. In an operation that began there Monday, government forces claimed they killed seven Viet Cong and captured 24 shortly after a helicopter-borne operation was launched.

CLAIM 60 KILLED

The South Vietnamese defence ministry claimed 60 Viet Cong were killed in two battles in Binh Dinh province, where the government is trying to roll back massive gains made by the Viet Cong in December and January. Ten government troops were reported killed and 17 were wounded.

Government authorities at Da Nang, 380 miles north of Saigon, postponed until Thursday the public execution of a Viet Cong terrorist. They said the prisoner was giving information about Communist activities in the Da Nang area.

Police disclosed a plot to blow up Saigon's posh Caravelle Hotel failed when another Viet Cong terrorist who was to have carried out the attack gave himself up Saturday.

WIRE BRIEFS

Airliner Missing

MIAMI (UPI) — A twin-engine DC-3 airplane with eight people aboard was reported missing today on a flight over the ocean from Port Au Prince, Haiti, to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Panic at New Tremor

MEGALOPOLIS (AP) — A new tremor shook the central Peloponnese today in the wake of Greece's worst earthquake in 12 years. The tremor was light but it caused panic among the survivors of Monday's quake which destroyed half a dozen villages.

Scrap Dealer Nabbed

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Controversial scrap dealer Charles Ghirardotti was arrested today when he refused "an order to leave his property and allow work to start on a new highway approach to the city."

'Believe Lamontagne' Lawyer Urges Dorion

(See also Page 13)

QUEBEC (CP) — Yves Fortier, counsel for Montreal attorney Pierre Lamontagne, today appealed to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion to believe Mr. Lamontagne's case "from beginning to end."

In a speech lasting more than two hours, Mr. Fortier summed up for the man who has accused four federal ministerial aides of trying to bribe or coerce him into agreeing to release on bail of suspected narcotics conspirator Lucien Rivard.

'POWERFUL PRESIDENT'

President Johnson has already established himself as a powerful president. Bruce Hutchison writes in an article from Washington on Page 5 today. But he still faces the risk of failure both at home and abroad, a failure which would be shared by the whole world.

Delaying Tactics Continue

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany closed Berlin's highway links to West Germany for the second straight day today, but opened them after 4½ hours, police reported.

The autobahns between the divided city and Munich and Frankfurt were blocked at the Berlin end and the Berlin-Hannover route was shut at both sides as the Communists increased pressure against a West German parliamentary meeting here Wednesday.

Meanwhile West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other Bonn politicians prepared to fly to Berlin for the meetings Wednesday, undeterred by a Russian warning that military manoeuvres might also affect air traffic to the divided city.

East German border guards sealed off the checkpoint of Babelsberg this morning, which meant no road traffic was able to leave West Berlin to the three superhighways to Hannover, Frankfurt and Munich.

Police said the Communist checkpoint at the West German end of the 110-mile Berlin-Hannover autobahn was also closed, bringing traffic to a standstill both ways on the main Berlin land artery.

REPORT DELAYS

Delays of six to eight hours were reported on a fourth road link, an ordinary highway between Hamburg and Berlin. The road was not affected by Monday's blockade.

Meanwhile, more sonic booms were heard today over Berlin, assumed to be made by East German or Soviet jets on their joint military manoeuvres around the city.

An Allied spokesman said the Western Allies protested in the strongest terms to Soviet officials at the autobahn checkpoints against the interference with traffic on the highway Monday.

AILING from heavy cold and fever picked up in Paris last week, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson defied doctor's orders today to make brief appearance in Commons, but then returned to bed at No. 10 after answering questions.

COSTLY N-BOMBER SCRAPPED

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government announced today its long-awaited decision to scrap the TSR-2 supersonic nuclear bomber, the most costly warplane ever built in Britain.

The announcement was made in the annual budget speech by treasury chief James Callaghan.

The plane had cost £125,000,000 ($375,000,000) so far and cancellation will save £35,000,000 ($105,000,000) of government money in 1965-66. Callaghan said production of the aircraft would have diverted hundreds of factories employing thousands of skilled technicians from other work of national importance.

$1B Option On U.S. Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced today that the British government has an option to buy $1 billion worth of U.S.-made F111 supersonic fighter planes.

The announcement came shortly after disclosure that Britain's trouble-plagued TSR2 supersonic jet bomber was being scrapped. McNamara's announcement said the British had an "option" to buy the F111 — formerly known as the TFX — subject of a year-long Congressional investigation.

McNamara said he expected London to place orders for the F111, a controversial 1,650-mile-an-hour plane, following a current British defence review.

Britain is the second country to get in line for the F111. Australia put in an order for 24 of the planes at a cost of $125 million.

Later Start For Playoff

The fourth game of the Western Hockey League semifinal playoff between Victoria Maple Leafs and Seattle Totems at Memorial Arena will start at 8:15 tonight — 15 minutes later than usual.

The new time is designed to accommodate fans who might wish to watch the National Hockey League televised playoff game between Toronto and Montreal. The telecast starts at 5:30, channels 2 and 6.

U.K. Budget Hits Many With Taxes

Drinks, Fags, Cars Raised

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Labor government today presented a 1965-66 budget that will hit the pockets of nearly every Briton, particularly the working man who voted the socialists into power.

In its bid for austerity necessary to end the balance of payments crisis, the Labor government hiked the prices of liquor, beer and wine, cigarettes, vehicle tax and some other everyday items to an extent which even the gloomiest prophet did not foresee.

Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said his new taxes were aimed at bringing in an additional $459 million during 1965-66 and $607 million in 1966-67.

The budget cracked down on expense account spenders and put new curbs on spending by Britons abroad.

Callaghan said the new taxes were necessary to "bolster the confidence of Britain's creditors, who helped save the pound from threatened devaluation shortly after the Labor government took over in the Oct. 15 elections."

CAPITAL GAINS

The government proposed a new capital gains tax which would bring in about $350 million a year. It also hit the expense account and "business lunch" spenders.

Callaghan said that except for entertainment of foreign buyers, expense accounts on business entertainment would generally be fully liable for tax purposes. The move was expected to hit luxury restaurants, cabarets and private clubs which cater to the businessman.

The chancellor also said the government planned to restrict the outflow of British capital abroad. He said such expenditures in 1964 accounted for almost half the record $2 billion balance of payments deficit. Callaghan said business entertainment had reached a "scandalous" stage where the taxpayers paid $1.40 of every $2.80 on business entertainment.

Another government move was to smash the "unduly generous" capital allowance on business cars, he said. The budget withdraws the initial 30 per cent tax allowance for the purchase of a car used in business.

"1964 was a year of reckoning for a decade of mistaken policies and false pride," the chancellor said to the cheers of Laborites. "I can see a program of reform stretching years ahead."

He said the government planned to reduce the outflow of capital by $280 million. Callaghan said the new corporation tax would be about 40 per cent.

LIMIT UNCHANGED

The government plans to keep in effect the ban on spending more than $700 for journeys abroad.

The annual registration tax on cars is increased to £17 10s ($32.50) from £15 ($45) a year.

Cigarettes will go up by six pence (7 cents) for 20 on brands now selling at four shillings 11 pence (73 cents). Those selling at three shillings and two pence (47½ cents) for 20 would go up by four pence (five cents) a package.

RC Law Change Due

HEAD OFF NDP THREAT

Liberals Swing Toward the Left

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — If there was one refrain running through the speech from the throne which Monday opened the third session of Canada's 27th Parliament, it was the decisive lean toward the political left displayed by the Liberal government.

The unfolding of the actual legislation over the next few months will show the extent to which this represents a genuine shift in the balance of power within the Pearson cabinet.

In the meantime, the list of their legislative intentions makes it clear that the Liberals have become concerned over the chances of an NDP surge.

To meet this threat, they have moved left along the spectrum of Canadian politics and appropriated most of the planks which might have adorned the Socialist election platform.

All Adaptations

The government's declaration of a war on poverty, its anti-automation plans, implementation of the Canada Assistance Plan, the preliminary but definite commitment to medicare, the fight against the high cost of drugs, establishment of the Canada Development Corporation — these and other proposals are all adaptations of NDP initiatives.

Such long-time NDP crusades as the limitation of elec-

TEACHER BLASTS MUTUAL ADMIRATION SOCIETY OF MEDIOCRITIES

'Seen Enough of Living Death' Among Teen-Agers

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A young high school English teacher who says he has "seen enough of living death" in suburbia is quitting his job. He took a newspaper ad to blast teen-agers as "a mutual admiration society of mediocrities."

The Minneapolis suburb of Wayzata was still buzzing today over Douglas Sarff's burning criticism of its way of life. Sarff, a 30-year-old bachelor, has taught at Wayzata High for five years.

In a full-page ad in Wayzata's weekly paper, Sarff said the suburb's young people inherit "a shrill, hand-waving, convertible-riding round of trivialities... a blurred descent into oblivion, because — having exhausted its substance by age 17, and knowing nothing else — they become bored with themselves, with others and with life."

Sarff especially criticized those teen-agers who "would rather eat pizzas, go to 'cool' dances, ride convertibles, try on the latest in ski-sweaters, and contemplate the busy social calendar for next year, when they will 'go collegiate'."

"I tell you, I have seen enough of living death. I have been able to absorb everything else — attacks from all sides, the indifference of slow learners required to take my course, even being dropped back a step on the salary schedule last spring — but the petrification of a once-vital young person is a sight so ugly that all my senses reel from it."

Some of Sarff's students supported his letter. Among their comments:

"You learn more from him in one day than you do from the other teachers in a whole year."

"Some of his ideas are a little wild for a high school. I agree with him completely."

But others said, "he's a real weirdo," and "I thought the letter was kind of crummy."

Two fellow faculty members split on judging Sarff's open letter. To 28-year-old James Lewis, chairman of the faculty club, Sarff "lives in a world of good books, fine music and excellent poetry. He should realize that the whole world just isn't filled with this."

But Donald Freeburg, another Wayzata High English teacher, said he essentially agreed with the contents of the letter, although he imagined most teachers did not.

"Most teachers expressed great disbelief that someone would do it," he said. "A teacher with a family and other responsibilities just couldn't."

Hugh L. Coats Jr., father of four students at Wayzata High, three of whom have taken classes from Sarff, said the teacher's main intention was to make the students think.

"He goes a little too far, but we agree with him in principle," Coats said. "We may feel pretty much the same way but don't have the guts to say it quite that way."

SELMA, Ala.—Mayor Joe Smithman denies that he and a companion were conned into paying a Negro man to find them some entertainment in Washington, D.C.

Dutty Police Chief Lawrence A. Hartnett reported in the U.S. Capital Monday that James Edwards, a 44-year-old Negro, had been arrested on a charge of grand larceny by trick.

He was picked up, Hartnett said, after a tipster told police a man was bragging about conning the mayor of Selma.

Smithman later told The Associated Press in Birmingham, Ala., that the reports from Washington were false and exaggerated.

One of Smithman's companions on the trip, Selma public safety director Wilson Baker, told The Associated Press during a stopover in Atlanta earlier that the mayor and Selma attorney Joe Pilcher were the victims of a "flim-flam" Sunday night.

Baker said Smithman and Pilcher went out to find a night club and ran into a man who "gave them a song and dance about paying money to join a private club."

Pilcher put up two $50 bills. Then the man went into a building saying he would register them as members and he just didn't come back.

The Selma men had gone to Washington to tape a television program.

Smithman, in denying the reports of a swindle, maintained that Edwards had picked Pilcher's pocket while riding in a cab with them to find a place to eat.

VATICAN CITY—The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano Monday scolded three Italian actresses for their views on nudity in movies.

The newspaper's remarks were directed at Sophia Loren, Gina Lollobrigida and Claudia Cardinale. It accused the actresses of "vulgarity and bad faith."

Osservatore Romano was commenting on remarks attributed to the actresses in an article on film pornography by Incom, one of Italy's most popular slick magazines.

The Incom story carried these quotes:

● Lollobrigida: "Naked, I am not pornographic."

● Loren: "I am not harmful for minors."

● Cardinale: "For me, to show my skin is always less embarrassing than to show intimate sentiments."

Osservatore Romano's comment:

"They try to vaunt indifference in an area to which every woman is sensitive, faking candor and calmness after exhibitions that revolted the critics and made guests leave the theatres before the show was finished on the screen."

OSCAR AWARDS

Flower Girl Makes Good Along With Original Cast

By JAMES BACON

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—My Fair Lady, like the Cockney flower girl whose story it tells, made good—winning eight Oscars at the 37th annual motion picture Academy Awards.

The movie won the best picture honor and was filmed entirely in Hollywood. But in other respects academy voters were generous to foreigners: The four top acting awards handed out at Monday night's ceremonies went to Europeans—three of them Britons.

Among them was Rex Harrison, the rapid-fire, acid-tongued Professor Henry Higgins who coached his flower girl Eliza Doolittle into such a fair lady she was mistaken for a princess.

Top actress award went to Julie Andrews—the Eliza Doolittle of the stage but not the screen—for her role as the high-flying nanny in Mary Poppins.

And two long shots, Britain's Peter Ustinov and France's Lila Kedrova, won the supporting performer Oscars.

For Harrison, the honor was the highest in a distinguished film career dating back to 1929.

SOOTHS HURT FEELINGS

For Miss Andrews, a bright and beautiful newcomer, it was sweet solace for a disappointment: Not being chosen to do the screen version of My Fair Lady.

She had co-starred with Harrison on Broadway in the big Lerner-Lowe musical, based on George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion.

But Warner Brothers chose Audrey Hepburn for the film role, in which she did not win a nomination.

Miss Hepburn, who flew here from Europe especially for the award ceremonies, presented the Oscar to Harrison. When she stepped onto the stage of the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium she received a large ovation.

Ustinov won an Oscar for his portrayal as the head of a burglary ring in Topkapi, a comedy dealing with a bizarre jewel theft. The portly, mustachioed Ustinov, 43, London-born of Russian parents, did not come from London to accept the award—the second he has won for supporting actor.

He received an Oscar for his performance in Spartacus in 1960. The Russian-born Miss Kedrova, now living in France, was making her first movie in English when she appeared in Zorba the Greek as the much-used woman of pleasure.

Bob Hope was master of ceremonies. Noting the preponderance of nominations and awards for the English, Hope said:

"There'll always be an England—even if it's in Hollywood."

Other awards won by My Fair Lady were for sound, costume design by Cecil Beaton, music score by Andre Previn, cinematography by Harry Stradling, a combination award for art director by Gene Allen and Cecil Beaton and set decoration by George James Hopkins, and one for director George Cukor.

Besides the award for best actress, Mary Poppins won five Oscars, including one for the best song, "Chim Chim Cher-ee."

Zorba the Greek claimed three.

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, starring Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, was judged the best foreign film.

Other awards included:

Sound effects: Goldfinger, Eon Productions, United Artists, Norman Wanstall.

Special visual effects: Mary Poppins, Walt Disney Productions, Peter Ellenshaw, Eustace Lycett and Hamilton Luske.

Documentary (features): World Without Sun, Filmadles Requins, Associates-Orsay-Ceip, Columbia, Jacques-Yves Costeau, producer; (short subjects): Nine From Little Rock, United States Information Agency, Guggenheim Productions.

Costume design (black and white): The Night of the Iguana, Seven Arts Productions, Metro-Goldwyn—Mayer, Dorothy Jeakins; (color): My Fair Lady, Warner Brothers, Cecil Beaton.

Cartoon short subjects: The Pink Phink, Mirisch—Geoffrey Productions, Limited Artists, David H. Depatie and Friz Freleng, producers.

Live-action short subjects: Casals Conducts: 1964, Thalita films, Beckman Film Corporation, Edward Schreiber, producer.

Best music score (substantially original): Mary Poppins, Richard M. Sherman and Robert B. Sherman.

Best scoring of music (adaptation or treatment): My Fair Lady, Andre Previn.

Scientific-technical award: Petro-Vlahos, Wadsworth E. Pohl and Ub Iwerks for conception and perfection of techniques for composite cinematography that permit foreground objects to be combined with separately photographed backgrounds.

Film editing: Mary Poppins, Cotton Warburton.

Cinematography (black and white): Zorba the GREEK, Rochely Ltd., International Classics, Walter Lassally.

Cinematography (color): My Fair Lady, Harry Stradling.

Art direction-set decoration (color): My Fair Lady, Gene Allen and Cecil Beaton.

Best screenplay (based on material from another medium): Becket, Hal Wallis Production, Paramount, Edward Anhalt.

Best story and screenplay (written directly for the screen): Father Goose, Universal—Granov Production, Universal, story by S. H. Barnett, screenplay by Peter Stone and Frank Tarloff.

Red Jet Buzzes Berlin Airfield

BERLIN (Reuters)—A two-jet Soviet fighter swooped down over West Berlin's busy Tempelhof airfield today, an American spokesman said.

The plane came from East Berlin and flew at only 500 feet altitude over the airport in the French sector.

Officials said an immediate protest would be made at the four-power air safety centre here. The U.S., Britain, France and the Soviet Union administer the centre.

Williamson Loses Bid For Quashing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the British Columbia Supreme Court Monday rejected a plea to quash two forgery charges against a Vancouver public relations counsel, Al Williamson.

The charges were laid in connection with the "Dear Hal" letter that was sent to Hal Dornan, an aide to Prime Minister Pearson and that bore the signature of "W. A. C. Bennett."

The letter is thought to deal with an unsuccessful application by American millionaire Harry Stonehill for landed immigrant status. Premier Bennett has denied writing the letter.

In documents filed for the Supreme Court hearing, Williamson's counsel, Tom Braidwood, claimed the two charges were "vague, uncertain and contain no offence known to the law."

NO HARDSHIP

Mr. Braidwood said the charges failed to contain what he termed the "essential ingredients" necessary to describe them and therefore failed to meet the requirements of the Criminal Code.

In rejecting the application, Chief Justice Wilson said he could find "no hardship imposed on Williamson by the terms of the indictment."

Williamson faces one count of forgery and another of dealing in a forged document.

School Costs Topic

Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association will discuss the costs of public education at a meeting Wednesday evening.

A questionnaire mailed to members asked "Do you think Oak Bay's costs of public education could be reduced without loss of efficiency?"

Oak Bay school trustee Peter Bunn will be present at the meeting to answer ratepayers' questions.

Greater Victoria School Board's estimates this year total $11,662,243 which is an increase of $1.5 million over actual costs in 1964.

Public education cost is of additional interest to Oak Bay residents because of the number of private schools in the municipality.

Subpoena Ministers

MONTREAL (CP)—Three federal cabinet ministers have been subpoenaed to appear at a Quebec Superior Court hearing which starts today to answer questions over the awarding of a government contract.

The civil action brought by Autair Helicopter Services Limited, a Montreal-based firm, has led to issuing of subpoenas to Defence Production Minister Pickersgill and Privy Council President McRath.

Company President Douglas Connor said in an interview Monday Autair was refused a renewal of its contract to provide helicopter support on the ADGOM radar line in northern Quebec after "we had been assured our work was satisfactory and we knew our bid was the lowest."

He said the treasury board awarded the contract to a rival firm.

Cave Rescue Fatal To U.S. Navy Diver

By BILL SIMMONS

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. (AP)—The first sight of a skin diver bobbing to the surface didn't surprise any of the spelunkers trapped in flooded lowland cave, says Hugh Shell.

"But we hadn't anticipated the diver suggesting we put on some skin diving gear and go back out with him under the water," said Shell in an interview Monday "several hours after the tragedy-marred rescue."

"We thought he'd bring in supplies and we'd wait for the water to fall."

Skin divers led Shell, 40, of Batesville, Ark., and three college students, one at a time, through the 200 feet of murky water to safety outside the cave.

Shell and the other spelunkers—Hogan Bledsoe, 20, of Lake Village, Ark., and Steve Wilson, 20, of Batesville, students at Arkansas Tech, and Mike Hill, 19, of Batesville, a student at Arkansas College—came through their more than 36 hours in the cave showing no ill effects.

One of the divers collapsed at the mouth of the cave and died after helping out the last of the four cave explorers. He was Chief Damage Controlman Lyle E. Thomas, 39, one of three Navy divers flown in from Washington to help the rescue effort. Dr. T. J. Burton, Stone county coroner, attributed Thomas' death to a heart attack.

The spelunkers entered the cave in this Ozark foothills country early Saturday night.

"We were on our way out on Sunday morning when we came upon the water and we knew we were trapped," Shell said.

"But none of us was ever worried. We had provisions for four days and we figured we could wait for the water to go down. People knew we were in there, and we knew they'd be trying to get us out. And, if the water kept rising, we knew of higher rooms on back in the cave."

flowers, and the more flowers a herbaceous perennial has to produce the smaller they become unless annual banquets of manure (or compost) and plant food (fertilizer) have been provided with a lavish hand.

Most perennials need rejuvenating after four or five years, the old centres being discarded, the newer outer pieces retained, and the soil thoroughly worked and enriched with manure or compost plus a dash of bonemeal before the pieces are replanted.

The truly serious gardener may go a step further and remove the new growths, root them in a sandy soil mixture, and have one-stemmed plants this year that will produce flowers of astonishing size and brilliance.

Whichever course you may choose, lifting, dividing and replanting, or the rooting of cuttings, now is the time to act, for perennials make rapid growth once spring weather is settled.

This increase means many more shoots but at the same time the centre of the crown becomes exhausted and dies out as the years pass.

Berlin Crisis 'Artificial'?

Moscow Leaders Said Exploiting 'Disunity' Among Western Allies

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—The new rumpus over Berlin has an artificial, improvised look.

It seems to fall short of real crisis.

The Communist challenge is directed more at the West German government than specifically at the United States or the Western allies.

Big fuses over Berlin come regularly every few years. In the past, the appearance of a Berlin crisis usually was a reflection of some sort of Soviet policy problem, domestic or foreign.

This time it is possible the East German Communists insisted something had to be done to challenge the West German Parliament's plan to meet in West Berlin Wednesday, but the East German interference with land and air traffic to the isolated city undoubtedly was undertaken with Soviet approval.

In each successive crisis, the Russians evidently have hoped to make some sort of permanent gain from sanctioning and supporting harassment of air and autobahn traffic. Each time they have pulled up short of the dangerous showdown with the United States and the West.

This time Soviet policy makers, who have not been accomplishing much recently, might see some advantages in carefully heating up the Berlin atmosphere, but the operative word is "carefully."

Since they have been barred from any really effective endeavors in the Far East because of Chinese hostility to Russian influence there, the Russians have been focusing their attention on Western Europe and on attempts to exploit divisions in the North Atlantic alliance.

Huge Problems With Own Economy

The Kremlin has had much trouble in the world Communist movement. It has had difficulty keeping Communist East Europe in line. It has huge problems with its internal economy. It has made no spectacular moves on the world stage since the new regime took over from Nikita Khrushchev.

A Berlin fuss could demonstrate that the Kremlin's heart still is in expansion of Communist power—and there could be side benefits.

In the past, in times of disunity among the Western allies, Moscow has tried to take advantage. There are appearances of disunity now. There are differences over policy in Vietnam. There is President de Gaulle of France and his attacks on the U.S. dollar, and his hostility to U.S. economic power and U.S. leadership in Europe.

Moscow has been assiduously courting de Gaulle. After West German Chancellor Adenauer left office and the euphoria of French-German reconciliation gave way to a new coolness, the Communist camp may have seen possibilities for small but important gains in renewing pressure on vulnerable West Berlin.

But France, too, is committed to West Berlin remaining free of communism, and the Russians are unlikely to permit the tension to go too far. They also are unlikely to repeat the mistakes made by Stalin and Khrushchev. Stalin's mistake was a posture so menacing that it pushed the West together into solid unity. Khrushchev's error was in biting off more than he could chew, so that he had to back away from his ultimatum to the West to get out of Berlin.

ON THURSDAY

Sexton To Conduct Greenhalgh Service

Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia will conduct a funeral service in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday at 2 p.m. for Canon A. E. Greenhalgh, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday at the age of 83.

Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Canon Greenhalgh was rector of St. Martin-in-the-Fields until his retirement, due to ill health, in 1949. He continued as honorary assistant priest in Christ Church Cathedral and was widely esteemed in the diocese. Born at Swinton, England, he came to Canada in 1907 and began his church career the same year as a lay reader at Asquith, Sask.

Assisted by his wife, he worked at St. George's Church, Asquith, for four years while completing his theological studies.

ORDAINED IN 1911

He was ordained by Bishop J. A. Newnam at Prince Albert in 1911 and for 35 years worked in almost every district in the province. He was a member of Battle Lodge No. 19, AF and AM, and chaplain to the Cosmopolitan Club in Saskatoon.

Coming to Vancouver Island in 1946, Canon and Mrs. Greenhalgh worked at Ladysmith for a year before moving to St. Martin-in-the-Fields.

Canon Greenhalgh is survived by the widow, Nancy at their home at 314 Stannard Avenue; five daughters, Mrs. Alfred (Mary) Blower, Victoria; Mrs. J. (Kathleen) Wayman and Mrs. N. (Joyce) Noakes, Saskatoon; Miss Dorothy Greenhalgh, Victoria; and Mrs. Roger (Winifred) Roscoe, Edmonton; three sons, Canon G. H. Greenhalgh, Nanaimo; Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh, Quamichan; and K. D. Greenhalgh, Victoria.

He leaves 10 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and nieces and nephews in England.

'ELECTION MANIFESTO' SAYS DIEF

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Monday termed the government's throne speech an "election manifesto" filled with "nebulous" promises stolen from old platforms and other countries.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who will enter the debate today told reporters the speech contained a "sprinkling of policies embedded in dough," a mass of generalities like nuts in a fruit cake.

He indicated support for proposed measures to raise living standards and for the Company of Young Canadians, the Canadian version of the United States peace corps.

UVIC FACULTY GETS MAJOR SALARY BOOST

Salary increases averaging $1,000 a year have been given to University of Victoria faculty.

University president Dr. Malcolm Taylor said the increases were made in an effort to bring salaries on a competitive level with other universities.

University of B.C. and the University of Alberta both announced similar increases in faculty salaries last week.

The University of Victoria salaries were increased on the basis of this year's provincial government operating grant. The grant has not yet been received.

University board of governors' secretary, W. E. Ireland, said today if the operating grant was not sufficient to meet the pay increases the total elements of the university's budget would have to be re-examined.

"If the grant is not sufficient it probably would have to reflect itself in a curtailment of the university's academic expansion program."

U.S. Fire Bomb Raids On Villages Protested

TOKYO—(Reuters)—North Viet Nam has protested to the International Control Commission against the alleged use of napalm (jellied gasoline) and phosphorus bombs by the U.S. and South Viet Nam on populated areas, the North Viet Nam news agency said today.

The agency, in a dispatch monitored here, said North Viet Nam protested that the raiding aircraft dropped napalm and phosphorus bombs on villages in the Vinh Linh area in North Viet Nam Monday.

It also charged to the commission—composed of Canada, India and Poland—that the Americans and South Vietnamese planes "indiscriminately strafed" a number of bus stations and urban centres in Nghe An province.

The protest condemned the actions as "an extremely savage crime against the Vietnamese people."

It demanded that the U.S. and its "stooges" immediately end violations of North Viet Nam's territory, stop the aggressive war, withdraw all U.S. troops from South Viet Nam and respect the 1954 Geneva agreements on Viet Nam.

In another dispatch, the agency claimed Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam killed, wounded or captured 35,000 troops on the government side, including 1,086 Americans, in the first three months of this year.

It said that was three times as many losses as the government lost in the first quarter of last year and 1,000 more than the casualties in all of 1961.

The figures were attributed by the agency to the Liberation press agency, an arm of the Viet Cong guerrilla movement.

The Pill Works!

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—The oral contraceptive pill introduced in Australia three years ago has been responsible for a drop in the national birth rate, medical authorities claimed. Government statistician K. M. Archer announced that the annual birth rate dropped from 22.14 for each 1,000 in 1962 to 20.58 last year. Medical authorities said the decline in births tallied with the increasing use of the pill.

Purchasing Vacancy Filled

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace has been appointed a member of the three-man purchasing commission.

The vacancy was created when G. E. P. Jones, chairman of the commission, was fired by government order.

R. G. McKee, soon to retire as deputy minister of forests, is now chairman of the commission.

Third member of the commission is Arnold Webb, deputy minister of public works. He and Mr. Wallace serve without salary.

Ireland Union Election Issue

By COLIN FROST

DUBLIN (AP)—A new issue came to fore today on the eve of the Irish general election with a suggestion that Prime Minister Sean Lemass is planning a dramatic step toward unity with Northern Ireland.

The suggestion came from the Sinn Fein party, the militant anti-British and anti-partitionist group. It said it had reliable information that Lemass is negotiating with British Prime Minister Wilson to establish a council of state for all Ireland.

This council of state would bring the 26 counties of the Irish Republic into a loose federation with the six counties of Northern Ireland, which are still part of the United Kingdom. Lemass himself hinted in his parliamentary debate recently that his government would consider action along these lines.

Although nothing in the way of independent confirmation for the Sinn Fein claim was available, if true it could explain several curious features of recent British and Irish politics.

One is the almost total absence of discussion in the Irish election battle of Lemass' recent moves toward better relations with the north.

MEETS WITH O'NEILL

These included two meetings with Northern Ireland's prime minister, Terence O'Neill—the first such contacts since Ireland was partitioned after the First World War—and moves toward joint planning for industry, farming and tourism.

Some British commentators suggested that Wilson may be seeking a boost in Ireland for his slender majority in the House of Commons.

Northern Ireland, although it has its own parliament and a large measure of internal self-rule, sends 12 members to the British Commons. They invariably vote with the Conservatives.

If their vote in the British Commons could be limited to issues directly affecting Ireland, Wilson's knife-edge majority of three would be strengthened on such controversial matters as his plan to nationalize the British steel industry.

Oak Bay Still Cool On Hilltop Apartment

How high for an apartment on a hill?

Oak Bay council studied the question Monday night when the city of Victoria again sought rezoning for the site of the old men's home at 2251 Cadboro Bay Road.

The city, which owns the land, wants its rezoned to allow a six-storey building.

TOO HIGH

"I feel the site is so high-lying six storeys would be too high," said Coun. Douglas Watts.

"Three storeys would be more in line, otherwise it would stick out like a sore thumb for those in the Lansdowne slope area." "I feel the site is ideal for an apartment but height is the question," commented Coun. Fred Hawes.

HEARING CALLED

"But we all must realize as a matter of economics it is difficult to build a three-storey apartment of Class A construction."

Council will call a public hearing and prepare a draft bylaw, rather than give first reading to a resolution approving the rezoning.

No date was set.

MEDICARE PARLEY 'AT EARLY DATE'

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal-provincial conference to discuss medical and general health care will be held "at an early date," the throne speech noted Monday.

Informants said initial exploratory talks on how to improve the quality of health services and bring them to all persons are expected to be held at a federal-provincial premiers' conference later this spring.

However, it appeared unlikely the talks will result in any legislation being presented at the newly-opened third session of the 26th Parliament.

Informants say the federal government as yet has no formal indication from the provinces, in whose jurisdiction health care falls, about their thinking on the subject. For this reason it is not expected that the federal government will enter a federal-provincial conference with any hard and fast ideas about an eventual program.

PLANNERS ASK CLARIFICATION ON '66, '67 FETES

Which Centenary Has Priority?

Which centenary is supposed to get financial help from Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, members of the committee asked Monday.

Faced with requests for celebration of both the B.C. union centenary in 1966 and the Confederation centenary in 1967 the committee decided to ask the provincial centennial committee for clarification.

Esquimalt represent a tie James Bryant said there would not be enough money to celebrate both years without additional help from the municipalities.

It was pointed out the municipalities are providing only 40 cents per capita to stage events of a celebration nature, such as pageantry or assistance to privately organized events.

Three items pertaining to 1966 were raised before the question was asked as to how far the Greater Victoria Canadian Centennial Committee was supposed to go:

● Re-enactment Nov. 19 of the reading of an 1866 proclamation uniting Vancouver Island and mainland as a single colony;

● Staging of the Dominion Drama Festival at McPherson Playhouse May 16-21;

● Playing of 1966 Canadian Little League—baseball championships in Royal Athletic Park.

On the last item, a centennial committee grant of $2,500 was suggested to help bring teams from the Prairies, Ontario and Quebec. Organizers suggested $2,500 might also be put up by the B.C. centennial committee.

First appearance of a military tattoo marking the Canadian centenary will be in Victoria, the committee was told, probably in Royal Athletic Park.

Among the more recent suggestions for a permanent Canadian centennial project suggested to the committee are planting of young maples along Trans-Canada Highway, construction of two glass-domed scenic launches, installation of a railing on Ogden Point Breakwater to make a safe promenade, and construction of a pipeline to Esquimalt Harbor to improve Gorge Waterway and Portage Inlet.

A Program for Action

THE SPEECH FROM THE Throne opening the new parliamentary session outlines a program of legislation on which any government could hope to go to the country, particularly if the program could be presented as a matter of fulfillment rather than of intentions. With even half of this agenda successfully accomplished, Mr. Pearson could call an election with greatly enhanced prospects of winning. It is that fact which suggests that the opposition parties may be less than eager to contribute to Liberal achievement by pushing the legislation through in time for an election next fall.

Many of the proposed bills will be difficult for Conservative and NDP members to oppose directly. But delay and frustration, causing a consequent public impatience with the government, may be the objectives if Mr. Diefenbaker remains at his party's helm.

As of now the public reception should be good, although perhaps tinged with a caution born of the past session's foot-dragging progress. In the face of many of the government's new proposals, the Dorian enquiry and its unsavory attachments could quickly recede into history. The Speech has not, of course, touched on the over-ridingly important matter of the budget.

Some of the projects are directly in the stream of mid-twentieth century welfare philosophy. Proposed conferences with provincial governments on urban and rural re-development, and medicare plans; a plan—still to be clarified—for assistance to needy people; still another for retraining of workers displaced by automation; help for farmers—a perennial item in any program; assistance in regional development—all these are sure to appeal to those who see themselves as the eventual beneficiaries.

There are measures to grapple with the technical aspects of government: promised action on patriation of the constitution; a study of the need for an ombudsman or public representative to defend individuals or groups against injustice; reform of the parliamentary machinery; new emphasis on the rights of citizenship. Still other proposals will appeal to Canadians who have become concerned about apparent deficiencies in the nation's policies: the obvious need for a new look at our immigration regulations and procedures; the suggestion of a Canadian counterpart of the United States' Peace Corps, for use at home and abroad; a study of drug prices; attention to the problems of Canadian publications; a Canadian Industrial Development Corporation for industrial financing; and similar matters.

Lastly, there are some items bound to cause emotional reactions among a large part of the population—authorization of a "national" anthem and also a "royal" one; the controversial issue of capital punishment, and the almost equally provocative question of election campaign expenses.

Such a legislative schedule will indeed be a heavy one, and the coming session may well rival its record predecessor in length. But members of parliament of all parties must recognize that the public has been very patient as days and weeks have been frittered away in partisan sparring and posturing that should have been saved for the hustings. Already some members' reputations have been irretrievably damaged through their reckless devotion to rhetoric rather than to the public business. With this list of solid proposals in view—some of them unfinished business of the past session—the public will now expect some earnest statesmanship from all sides of the House. This had better be a session of achievement—or else.

The Moon Shines Bright

THE APPARENTLY REASON-able assumption that moonlighters take the jobs needed by the unemployed is challenged by a recent report of the United States Labor Department.

There are, says the report, almost as many Americans with two jobs as there are with none. But, it adds, if all the moonlighters quit their second jobs, it would not significantly help the nation's approximately four million unemployed.

A simple and discouraging explanation is given: Comparatively few jobless workers are trained for or would accept the secondary jobs held by dual job-holders.

Whether or not a similar situation exists in Canada cannot be answered without investigation. The basic factors of training or inclination, however, presumably apply in this country as well as in the United States.

The American study is not a complete justification of moonlighting. Before the practice can be approved it would be necessary, among other things, to show that the "moonlighter" is giving honest work for honest pay at both his occupations. If he is scamping one job to do another, then the employer in the first instance is getting less than he should receive.

On the other hand, the survey does indicate that the person with the vitality and the ambition to handle two jobs is not a significant cause of unemployment.

A Regional Parks Plan

IT IS A MATTER OF GENERAL satisfaction that parks in this community are open to all corners regardless of their place of residence. This is as it should be.

But it is a matter of some concern that the costs of maintaining such parks fall with undue weight on two of the municipalities: Saanich and Victoria.

Theoretically there is a compensatory factor in this uninhibited parks use. Residents of one municipality who are guests in another's recreational area are hosts to others in their own. The theory breaks down, however, when there is an inequitable distribution of parks—when taxpayers of one jurisdiction are required to finance more parks than are those of another.

For this reason the argument in favor of regional parks advanced by Mayor Wilson, as the city council passed the vote for Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks, makes excellent sense. Everyone is privileged to enjoy any of the parks and therefore should pay a fair share for their development and maintenance.

If it is unfair to suggest that some municipalities tend to be "free-loaders", it seems eminently fair to suggest that all municipal bodies in the lower Island region consider what should be their just contribution to what is really a common asset.

Say It With Music

DUNCAN RESIDENTS INTER-ested in music can note with satisfaction the community's recent acquisition—a $5,000 grand piano which will be available for Cowichan Music Festival events and concerts in the area.

This is not merely an excellent instrument which should increase the enjoyment of music lovers thereabouts. It is a demonstration of community spirit and the determination to apply principles of self-help. Duncan had come to realize that it needed a good piano. The experts who delivered the judgment—visiting festival adjudicators from Vancouver—started the campaign to finance one by giving their services for a fund-raising concert. The Cowichan school board paid half the cost and other district events raised the rest.

This makes sweet music that should appeal to other ears where instruments are needed to encourage young talent.

The Liberalizing Trend in Russia

WHILE in their foreign policy, the Russians continue to mark time, or at most to manoeuvre narrowly in the extremely treacherous strait between the United States and China, at home the positive search for the right road to prosperity conscientiously continues.

It must be a little strange to be a thinking Russian just now. Decades of Stalinist tyranny were followed by 10 years of Khrushchev's dramatics. During all this time, apart from the brief interregnum in 1953/54, one man, whether feared, detested, revered or despised, has been visibly and very evidently in command. Now, nobody can say just who is in command—and yet, in a quiet way, a great deal is being done. The field for personal enterprise is widening all the time.

Sober Attempt

The new agricultural reforms have been discussed. They are not spectacular, like some of Khrushchev's cure-alls, but are part of the first sober and systematic attempt to make Soviet agriculture work since collectivization 35 years ago.

Other things are going on as well. Throughout practically the whole spectrum of Soviet life there is a cautious, and often extremely tentative movement towards breaking down the central command structure, and replacing it with more flexible, ad hoc arrangements designed to allow a measure of autonomy to all sectors of the economy and of social and cultural life.

The command structure, of course, in Stalin's day, was based on naked police rule. Khrushchev, although he did away with terror, was also a great one for the ukase from on high, and his occasional decentralization reforms were concerned less with economics than with politics: thus, the decentralization of industry in 1958 had as much to do with breaking down and undermining excessively strong central ministries which could present a challenge to his own rule as with the reform of industry as such.

Now, at last, in agriculture, in industry, in cultural life too, rule by decree is being very widely questioned.

Controlling Hooligans

The new mood ranges from the introduction of a more subtle, discriminating and flexible way of coping with the problem of "hooliganism"—which, under Khrushchev, came to mean practically every offence against property and the individual—to a campaign to end large-scale seasonal unemployment on the land. According to Sovetskaya Rossiya, which is sponsoring this campaign, there are now well over 10 million collective farmers unemployed each winter—or over one-third of the total number of able-bodied workers on the land—and the number is rising. Nothing was done about this under Khrushchev. Nothing much has been done yet. But the fact that a newspaper is permitted to campaign for state assistance in the development of local handicraft industries to keep the peasants busy in winter is very much a sign of the times.

There are others. On the cultural front the situation looks much better. One of the most important signs here was the celebrated Pravda article in February by that paper's new editor, Rumanov, which was in effect an apology and a promise. The apology was for the sharp cultural freeze in the winter of 1962/63, and it took the form of a scarcely disguised attack on Khrushchev. But it went deeper than that.

New Cultural Climate

It carried the readers of Pravda back to the days before Stalin began to regiment the artists and the writers. It quoted Lenin in a passage which contradicted the whole attitude of the Kremlin towards artists: "You cannot talk to intellectuals at meetings, you have to examine the essence of their work... using real arguments, not the methods of an orator." It resurrected a 1925 decree, prohibiting the use of the command technique in literary matters, and suggested that it pointed the way to the future. Its words were given practical meaning by the dismissal from the party secretariat 10 days ago of Mr. Ilychev, the man whose main job was to boss the intellectuals.

Another sign is the remarkable accession of new and unorthodox writers and artists as office holders in the official unions, and the way in which the young, the sincere, the brave and the gifted heavily outnumber the old hacks, typified by the egregious Mr. Surdov, among the chosen delegates to the second All-Russian Writers' Congress.

But looming larger than any other problems are the problems of industrial management and the development of a rational political science within Russia.

Liberalism, though advancing very slowly and finding many obstacles to overcome, now seems to be taken quite for granted as the way to the future. Thus, one of Russia's most distinguished economists, Mr. Leontiev, could refer almost as an aside in Pravda the other day to "the commonly accepted necessity of a sharp increase in the role of profit as the most general indicator of the effectiveness of a factory's work."

Leontiev was writing about improvements in industrial planning and administration, above all the problems of price reform and how best to achieve autonomy for individual enterprises within the framework of a central plan. He, too, very interestingly referred, almost with wonder, to the active search for new and practical economic expedients which went on before Stalin closed down.

There will be a great deal more of this kind of thing. As more factories start putting liberalism into practice it becomes ever clearer that the whole system of supply and distribution must be redesigned to allow the necessary flexibility and speed called for by new methods of production.

Above all, the current reforms are spotlighting the problems of management. There are plenty of managers, often party hacks who can hand down orders from the centre. There are few who have the least idea of how to run their own enterprises in an efficient and profitable way. Even last year Izvestia was bemoaning the lack of managerial training in the Soviet Union, comparing unfavorably the Russian position with the faculties at United States, French and British universities for training future managers.

The Soviet Union, Izvestia said, "has not a single faculty which is capable seriously of providing instruction in management at any of our higher educational establishments." Messrs. Brezhnev and Kosygin have a great deal to think about beside the situation in Viet Nam.

New Hope for the Dollar

CROSSING your fingers is essential, and crossing your toes as well is desirable, when monetary matters are under discussion. But with this proviso, it must be said that in this special danger area, at any rate, the news is almost startlingly good. Only three months ago the European bankers and monetary experts were all but unanimously convinced that the U.S. dollar was in for very bad trouble and even, perhaps, for forced devaluation. In anticipation of this happy event, Gen. Charles de Gaulle had made his gold withdrawal and was preparing his Olympian pronouncement that a return to the pre-1914 gold standard was the only wise course.

Furthermore, there were solid grounds for apprehension. The fourth quarter of 1964 produced a very grave downturn in the American balance of payments; and something close to a run on the dollar continued through January and early February.

Voluntary Controls

To stanch the near-hemorrhage, President Johnson, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Secretary of Commerce John Connor devised an ingenious contraption of voluntary controls of capital movements by U.S. bankers and big businessmen. Because it was a contraption, it carried no immediate conviction in European financial circles. "Trouble soon" was still the watchword in Zurich, Frankfurt and, above all, Paris.

This is the background against which to judge what has now happened. At least a month will pass before final figures for the first quarter of 1965 will be available. The first sample reports of capital movements by selected banks may be wide of the mark by as much as $100 million or so. Yet it is already clear that the turn-around has been dramatic.

Beginning in mid-February, the improvement continued into March with such force that this month is now expected to be the best March in the recent history of the United States payments-balance, and perhaps the best March in 10 years. Despite the near hemorrhage in January and much of February, furthermore, the success in March is now expected to put our payments into balance with the rest of the world for the entire quarter.

Outlook Favorable

No one is quite sure whether the improvement will be maintained—this, in fact, is where finger and toe crossing is in order. But the outlook now is that the improvement will be largely maintained. The figures tell the story of what an exciting result this will be.

In brief, if the balance of payments for the year is just at the seasonally corrected rate for the first quarter (including the near hemorrhage) the deficit in the balance of payments will drop sharply to about $2 billion. If most of the recent gain is held, as seems most likely, the deficit will drop below $1 billion. And the normally cautious Douglas Dillon has been heard to guess that the deficit may be less than $500 million. This amounts to balance.

The effects in Europe of this sudden turn-around have been both healthy and a bit comical, if one may judge by the reported recent experience of Undersecretary of the Treasury Frederick Deming and the semiquarterly rally in Paris of the monetary experts of the OECD. At the last rally, the Johnson-Dillon-Connor contraption was rather patronizingly pooch-pooched.

This time, in contrast, it appears that, instead of skepticism about the contraption's workability, Deming encountered muted fears that it would be altogether too effective. The German, Swiss and other experts present were beginning to be decidedly uneasy about the tight situation being created in the European capital market by the damping of capital outflows from the United States.

Warning

"You can carry this thing too far, you know," Deming was reportedly told in effect.

If the British budget is "strong" in the bankers' sense—as is now confidently expected—the consensus also is that the current French-stimulated bear raid on sterling will certainly fail. In that case a great many French-persuaded bears are going to get their paws burned pretty badly; for the short-selling of sterling has gone so far by now that it will be exceedingly expensive for a lot of people to run for cover.

If all this is true, a very dangerous corner is going to be turned with brilliant success. Rather few Americans realized that it was a very dangerous corner. But you will see the danger if you pause to consider the U.S. position in Europe, for instance, with the grim crisis in Southeast Asia still in full course and with a weakening of the U.S. currency cranked into the equation.

As someone once said: "The United States needs to be rich; that is the first requirement."

To Make People Think

I am writing you with reference to your page 5 articles on foreign affairs. All my life I have been interested in what goes on in the world around us. I am an elderly man well past 80 years of age.

I consider your publication of these articles from the London Observer, Associated Press, etc., gives your paper a very high standing.

What we need is to get people to think, and see what is going on in the world, and in my opinion you are doing a wonderful educational work.—Tom Westwell, Duncan, B.C.

U.S. and Viet Nam

W. Madrona, in a letter dated March 31 does not see anything "dirty" about the use of force by the U.S. in Viet Nam and thinks that we should not be critical because the U.S. has been our ally and is fighting for us in Viet Nam.

The prevention by the U.S. of the 1956 free election, which was to have been held throughout North and South Viet Nam with secret ballots and under international control, was a violation of the 1954 Geneva Agreement and a betrayal of the principles of the United States itself.

The U.S. has made extensive use of napalm bombs and other weapons of indiscriminate massacre in its illegal actions.

The illegal use of force by a foreign power constitutes a war crime and crimes against humanity. The U.S. has been a good friend of Canada and the fact that the U.S. is in terrible trouble makes the U.S. no less a friend. However, it is very wrong and dangerous for Canada to pretend that a crime is not a crime when it has been committed by a friend. We must urge that the Geneva Agreement be honored.—E. H. Richardson, 1704 Newton.

Professors' Pay

The recent article by Professor Bishop is typical of the narrow view so often exhibited by teaching staff of universities—they appear to be "out of this world."

The salary differential between B.C. and the U.S. is not peculiar to university faculty. It applies to many other areas of employment. You see Professor, if you wish to live in this area rather than in the U.S. or eastern Canada, you must be prepared to pay the price in the same way that many others are cheerfully doing.

I note that in quoting salary differences you carefully omit disclosing the actual salaries paid to B.C. university faculties. The public might be surprised to learn that B.C. pays its professors approximately $10,000 to $15,000 for eight months' work, not 12 months. Again, no mention is made of "extra curricular" earnings during the remaining four months and even during the eight months of teaching.

As a taxpayer I am very concerned that our costly and often lavish universities are operated both efficiently and economically, and I am not at all satisfied that the latter is the case.—Tax Payer.

Point of Interest

With reference to the "Tilikum" controversy, may I point out that a few years ago the ship was found to be badly infected with rot and it is only through action taken by members of the Thermopylae Club that the Tilikum was saved from the same fate as some of the original totem poles. The correct place for the Tilikum is in the Maritime Museum.

Mr. Mowat might be reminded that it is not the duty of the City Hall nor the people of Victoria to provide him and his business with "Points of Interest."—"S. Fairfield."

Cat Hosing

To the sadist in Oak Bay who is known to have baited a box to trap a cat, in order to turn a hose on the animal until it was almost unconscious, and then released it, to escape from the force of water from the hose still pounding it, we wish to say: "How sadistic can a man become?"

Domestic animals are at the mercy of people who sometimes turn their "inventive" mind to dastardly acts such as the one above perpetrated against a small, tame cat.

If the comparative sizes of man and cat could be reversed, and the cat could turn on the tap and hold the hose, would that not be a just retribution for the man's vicious act?—"Do Unto Others."

Gurdjieff

Reading Wednesday's Times Hillside Column I was interested in a paragraph stating that an ad had appeared in last week's Times asking anyone interested in Gurdjieff to communicate. I hadn't noticed the advertisement. I was, however, astonished at the remarks of "Hillside" and of his search as to who and what Gurdjieff was or is.

If he had stopped on the main floor of the Victoria Library, had looked up the card index, had asked at the information desk, he would have undoubtedly have been put on the track of Mr. Gurdjieff.—E. Taylor.

Looking Back

From The Times of April 6, 1890.

Washington: A reform group has been formed to bring religion into political and state affairs. It favors using Bible teachings in the settlement of public affairs and the insertion of the Supreme Being into the U.S. constitution. The group called on the president and said it was received kindly. The president, a group spokesman said, did not wish to be compelled to make a response to their address, adding that his subjects were so complicated he required time for their consideration.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

Are Ministers Getting Bad Advice?

A chap who has been around but not in the civil service offered me an unusual explanation for the bumbling and gaucherie of the Pearson government and its predecessor. It is the low quality of the general civil service, its dearth of brilliant and energetic men.

The evidence he gave was convincing. Since he is bright, well-educated, and not in a position to be either jealous or frustrated by the civil servants, his points are worth repeating.

His view happens to be close to mine, but he has more reason to be objective. Like most politicians, I tend to curb my opinions on officials, partly because it is unfair to whack those who cannot answer back.

It is easy to find supporting examples for my friend's argument. Take almost every case where the government has looked bad, and it is clear that the ministers were not operating in their own vacuity, but acting with the advice of their officials.

A recent and petty example was the snafu Jack Nicholson found himself in with the Sibley case. Obviously, the information on the Minnesota professor's unsuitability for entry to Canada as a speaker came from officials.

They did not seem to have told Nicholson that Sibley had been into Canada to speak only a few months ago and the nation had been unshaken. They must have exaggerated Sibley's menace beyond common sense.

Then when the minister was exposed, as might have been anticipated, given the national and militant character of Sibley's hosts, the Voice of Women, the minister persisted for several days in supporting the action taken by his officials.

What loyalty! Knowing Nicholson's conscientiousness and the publicly exposed hopes of Mr. Pearson in the case, and the pressure of the Liberal caucus, one can only conclude that this second folly of the minister was on the insistence of his officials that they be supported.

Take a really big issue like the Canada Pension Plan. Clearly the politicians and the party planners can only give the roughest guide-lines for something as complex as this meshing of provincial and federal authority and administration. What happened? Over a 15-month period we develop and discard two plans for a third one that is much altered and still full of enough loop-holes to give critics a series of field days before the parliamentary committee.

The general attitude, now that the plan is through, is one of relief and the expression is very common that "even if there are a lot of flaws and weak spots they can be straightened out in future years."

The almost comic nature of the potential ineptitude of the officials who are supposedly expert in this field was revealed when a young actuary in the insurance department announced for all to hear that he thought the plan was bad, even a fraud.

It turned out that his view was based on his political philosophy that pensions should be left to private enterprise, not because he knew from his expert knowledge that the plan was actuarially unsound.

What kind of civil service have we when a highly paid professional is so adolescent? Doesn't it make you wonder what the actuaries may be like who drafted the various plans for the government?

Take another major example. For more than two years the transportation buffs in the department of transport work out new railway legislation from the MacPherson Commission's recommendations. Two different governments have ministerial responsibility in this preparation. When the bill is brought in by Mr. Pickersgill the line develops that this bill is really experimental "in order to give everybody a chance to take a whack at it. Everybody has. The bill will die and the government will try again next session with another draft, presumably prepared by the same people who made such a poor fist of the first one.

Mr. Pickersgill introduced another railway bill on the Ottawa Terminal Railway Co. This was a much smaller enterprise. It got to the railway committee and died there. One hears it won't be back again, that another way of accomplishing the bill's intent without legislation has been worked out. Wouldn't keen officials have anticipated the bill's troubles and the other recourse?

Here is poor Guy Favreau waiting to the Dorion Inquiry about working 18 hours a day. Those of us who know the long delays in ever getting a reply to letters sent to his office can believe he was swamped and confused.

Where are his officials? What must be the quality of the guidance he gets from his senior officials?

Take Mr. Pearson and that first forlorn flag design he flaunted. The prime minister of the country decides on a flag design and hasn't even got the colors and the details complete or in final illustrated form ready to demonstrate. It wasn't the prime minister's task to do so. It was the duty of his officials.

Look at Allan MacEachen, minister of labor. Officials devise a manpower consultative service and administer a National Employment Service that the Economic Council states is inadequate.

He snarls back at the council and then belatedly sets out a new role of the National Employment Service within his department that still does not meet many of the criticisms. As my friend put it: "What kind of dolts has he got advising him?"

My protagonist of the civil service's mediocrity went back to such follies as the Coyne affair and the way Premier Bennett of B.C. took the federal government over the falls on the Columbia River Treaty. Repeatedly, ministers have had to backtrack or withdraw, all the time getting lumps from their political opponents. Isn't it time we began to wonder if our politicians can be so bad? Or, that they cannot be much better than their advisers?

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

'Lellow, Like a Dandedil'

MANY years ago, when Robert Briffault hit the best-seller lists with his novel "Europa" and followed it with "Europa in Limbo," I ventured a glance at his more serious work. It is called "The Mothers" and is rated highly by experts familiar with anthropology and philosophy.

"The Mothers" was a bit voluminous for me—two volumes that seemed at the time to make "Anthony Adverse" look like a short story. Since I was long out of the pressed flower hobby, I glimpsed at Volume I, and then returned it with suitable apologies to the public library.

Stott

But from the glimpse I retained a point that interested me then and still does. It concerned the dependence of conceptual thought—the progress from one idea to another—on the powers of communication. In other words, if members of a species could not talk to one another, or better still, write to one another, it was impossible to exchange ideas. Reactions, as I understood it, were one-shot propositions arising from a particular stimulus. Lacking communication, they could not be developed in association with the reaction of others.

No doubt this explanation is either an oversimplification of Briffault, or else I got the thing wrong in the first place. Still, it seems logical to me.

The principle, as I understand it, or misunderstand it, is important only if a person has ideas. Since it's a long time since I had one good idea to rub against another, the significance of the thought has not been personally significant in recent years.

Nevertheless that quick and inadequate glimpse at "The Mothers" has had some influence on my concept of the importance of vocabulary and speech to children. It has led me to test the theory in my own home. The experiment was not a complete success. One child reacted negatively, says little and answers questions in monosyllables. One reacted favorably and discusses things with us.

In the other case I got what I should have expected, hereditarily being what it is—a young man who, like his father, started to talk before he was four years old and has been interrupted only by a brief bout with laryngitis.

Now we are involved, a little indirectly, in a repetition of the young talking machine experience. The small redhead is just three and one-half, but he has already set his sights on a lifetime record for loquacity.

Having been singled by my efforts to follow what I thought was Mr. Briffault's point, I'm keeping relatively clear of experimentation with the miniature gentleman. Sure, I'm foolish enough to try to correct his grammar—and he has pronoun trouble ("Her." I keep telling him, is not to be used as the subject of a sentence—except in this instance. He couldn't care less.)

Instead, he's teaching me, and opening whole new vistas of a fine, freehand sort of English that may someday become classic.

"Yesterday," in his mouth, becomes "Las-terday," and I like it better. Who'd bother with "yester" when there's a prefix which gives a better sense of past tense? "The last time I saw Paris" makes my point. How would it sound if you said "The yester time I saw Paris?"

In his animal picture book he has a creature with black fur and a streak of white down the back. That, he explains, solemnly to me, is a "stunk." He doesn't have to tell me that the animal hasn't been de-odorized.

When we go out in the yard, his sense of color shows up brilliantly. He points to a bloom and tells me it is "lellow like a dandedil."

Beyond all this he has a facility for sounds with which advancing years have made adults unfamiliar. These are not the rattling barks of a machinegun, which he also uses as he massacres me daily. They are what I believe Wilson Duff and others acquainted with Indian and other languages, would call phonemes—pronunciation sounds difficult for the speech organs of the conventional speaker.

I think the redhead may be going on from where George Bernard Shaw left the alphabet and where James Joyce left the language.

It's true that the young gentleman doesn't always make sense when he's talking—at least he doesn't always make sense to me. But it all sounds vivid and interesting.

And how much sense do you find in the great debates and casual conversation you hear these days?

WASHINGTON — A president of the United States who lacks the will to supreme power can be merely the chief executive and presiding officer described in the constitution. A president who has the necessary talent, ambition and courage can be a force far stronger than the constitution intended. He can make himself the essence of his age, the pervading spirit and dominant influence of society.

There have been few such presidents but Lyndon B. Johnson already must be counted among them.

History alone will judge, years hence, whether Johnson was a great man, and history's retrospective verdicts are often surprising. In the meantime, however, he has established himself as an exceedingly powerful president in the tradition of Wilson, Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy, a smiling autocrat, almost a one-man government.

Presence Felt

His presence is felt everywhere from the White House to every department of the state, from Wall Street to the poorest hamlet in the land. His mood of optimism, his sheer drive and his refusal to admit that anything is impossible colors the mood not only of this capital but of the entire nation.

Like his eminent predecessors, Johnson loves power, understands its uses, hoards it greedily and never doubts that he will always use it for the public good. But he differs from all those men in his methods, his attitudes and his circumstances.

Wilson's new liberalism was a noble but largely an intellectual exercise by an academic statesman never close to the people. Roosevelt's new deal was a contradictory jumble of pragmatic experiments devised and executed, on behalf of the poor forgotten man, by a rich country squire from Hyde Park. Truman had been brought up in a poor household as a forgotten man himself but his Fair Deal merely extended Roosevelt's work. And Kennedy died when his bolder program had been barely launched.

Quite Different

Johnson, with a vague concept known as the Great Society, is quite a different phenomenon, not only in the person of its architect but in the climate of the times.

To begin with, there is no question of the president's sincerity as he directs his war on poverty. For him that convenient label does not represent a distant goal. It is the central and immediate impulse of his life. Not a political trick to win votes but a passion for which he is ready to hazard his career.

Bestrides Nation

The poor boy from Texas who is now rich and bestrides his nation like a colossus simply cannot believe that any honest American should be deprived of the good life. If he could achieve it so, in some measure anyway, can every citizen be willing to work and save.

This may be an over-simplified and rather naive ideal but the president feels it, as he once said, with the overtones of his southern accent, "in the marra of mah bones."

Like Roosevelt and Truman, he knows little of economics, the technical means of reaching his goal, the harsh limits imposed on his generous ambition. The process undertaken in his name and already codified in a far-reaching agenda of specific laws, is infinitely more complicated, difficult and doubtful than he seems to comprehend, or cares to admit, even to himself.

In fact, Johnson is not merely proposing reforms. He is proposing a new kind of social system. He is not merely building on the base left by his predecessors. As the most radically liberal president in American history he is leading a peaceful revolution. And this will strike future historians as curious because the president, in his private character, is a conservative and somewhat old-fashioned man.

Working By Hunch

Working ambivalently, more by hunch than by reason, he may not yet appreciate the scope or foresee the outcome of this commitment but these things will soon become clearer, and more daunting, as he grapples with poverty in an opulent country.

Broad statistics showing an unemployment rate of about five per cent do not reveal the real nature of the president's problem. Actually there is no significant unemployment among white American males over 21 years of age. As a national condition, unemployment exists almost exclusively in certain pockets among females, Negroes and youths entering the labor market. Of these elements the largest and most frightening is the new generation, a tidal wave of young people, now about to seek their first jobs. The product of a population explosion by no means confined to Asia, Africa and Latin America will quickly add a new else foresaw the staggering impact of the technical change called automation and, simultaneously, the sudden proliferation of human beings all over the world.

In this unexpected situation Keynes' doctrines, however valid, are recognized as quite inadequate and greatly overrated. The prophet of the new age is a Canadian-born economist, diplomat and wit, John Kenneth Galbraith, whose book, The Affluent Society, has become the rough working paper of Johnson's next installment, the Great Society.

End Unknown

No one knows where the march led by Johnson is going, the methods of huge state investment he will use, the ultimate result of his huge leftwards into collectivist solutions, or the nature of the society in which the next generation will live. No one can even know whether the march will soon stumble into a crisis impelled by a breakdown in the machinery of international exchange.

However, if he can somehow begin to solve problems unknown to his predecessors—and he can make hardly more than a beginning—Johnson faces risks larger than he seems to realize or, at any rate, has admitted publicly.

The first risk is inherent in his office. Until now he has governed by what he calls "consensus." This means, in plain fact, that he fits his policy to the will of the majority as he senses it with exceedingly fine antennae. This method cannot succeed for long. It has never succeeded under any strong president.

By definition all strong presidents, from Washington to Lincoln to Roosevelt, have been forced at some point to resist the majority. Only weak presidents carried out its will at all times, and then at the cost of national weakness.

Before he is finished, and probably not long from now, Johnson must be prepared to accept unpopularity when he knows he is right and the majority wrong or all his plans will go awry. Consensus and leadership cannot live permanently together. No strong president can ever hope to be loved without interruption.

The True Test

The true test of Johnson, therefore, will not be found in his magical manipulation of votes. It will be found in himself, the mysterious self behind the grinning public facade and the cowboy's caricature, the self hidden, so far, by the crude legend of the master politician.

Certainly political competence by itself will not be enough. There must be greatness and the final burden of loneliness also, or Johnson will fail his test. Its outcome is unpredictable anyhow because the nature of the test cannot be predicted. All we can as-dimension to American society, a dimension unforeseen and by existing methods unmanageable.

The same, of course, is generally true in Canada which cannot hope to solve its own problems lacking buoyant prosperity in the United States.

Thus, the two neighboring nations are equally involved in the vast and dubious enterprises undertaken by Johnson, so far in a tentative, exploratory fashion. At best they are pretty amorphous and groping. It is not certain, either, that the president's success in assuring full employment, if he succeeds, would make anything like a Great Society. It might make only a richer and more unhappy one. But at least the historical logic driving Johnson is becoming clear, whether he grasps it or not.

Based on Keynes

Roosevelt's New Deal was based primarily on the economics of John Maynard Keynes, the theory that the state could regulate prosperity by manipulating the levers of the money system. All those neat, mechanical devices have been used, perhaps used up, and unprecedented affluence, for most Americans, has been achieved.

Fear of Absorption by the U.S. Won't Stem Quebec Nationalism

By ARCH MACKENZIE

Says Ryan:

"Most modern nations came into being as a result of violent upheavals which were largely determined by the rebellious instinct of repressed nature. Canada stands almost alone in this respect with her historic dependence on the law of reasonable compromise."

Common Fear

"The will to compromise was largely influenced in 1867 by a common fear of absorption into the American melting pot. Both founding peoples were too much attached to their European traditions to be seduced by the American cultural proposition."

Aware of Canada

His article is another indication of more general American awareness of Canada's domestic problems, reflected not only in press and periodical scrutiny but among Americans little inclined otherwise to give Canada much thought at all.

it, Ryan writes. He compares what he calls the "Canadian" point of view espoused by Premier Jean Lesage and other Quebecers, a more moderate attitude, with the "Quebec first" school.

The essence of the latter philosophy is described as a belief that "the interests of Quebec must supersede all other considerations."

"Underlying this premise is a burning faith in the ability of French-Canadians to accomplish for themselves what scores of other previously 'occupied' nations have achieved in the last 20 years in Asia and Africa."

The "Quebec first" argument cannot be dismissed too lightly because it rides a wave of nationalism and has other appeals as well, says Ryan.

Next 10 Years

"I would even suggest that in the long run, unless new dynamic arrangements are worked out between Quebec and the rest of Canada, the Quebec thesis might well prevail. The future of Quebec may largely depend upon the attitude which is adopted by English Canada in the next 10 years."

A Distinguished American Bitterly Condemns Viet Nam Policy

Mr. President:

The time has come for someone to speak out on behalf of the great body of your countrymen who regard with abhorrence the course to which you are committing the United States in Viet Nam. As a holder of the Presidential Medal of Freedom, I have a duty, to say plainly, and in public, what millions of patriotic fellow citizens are saying in the privacy of their homes. Namely, that the course you are now following affronts both our practical judgment and our moral sense.

Neither your manners nor your methods give us any assurance that your policy will lead to a good end; on the contrary, your attempt to cure by military force a situation that has been brought about by our own arrogant, one-sided political assumptions cannot have any final destination short of an irreparable nuclear catastrophe. That would constitute the terminal illness of our whole civilization, and your own people, no less than the Vietnamese and the Communists would be the helpless victims.

Lewis Mumford, a distinguished American scholar, critic, editor and author, has scathingly criticized his country's role in Viet Nam in an open letter to President Johnson.

From the beginning, the presence of American forces in Vietnam, without the authority of the United Nations, was in defiance of our own solemn commitment when we helped to form that body. Our steady involvement with the military dictators who are waging civil war in South Viet Nam, with our extravagant financial support and underfunded military co-operation, is as indefensible as our Government's original refusal to permit a popular election to be held in Viet Nam, lest communism should be installed by popular vote. Your attempt now to pin the whole blame on the government of North Viet Nam deceives no one except those whose wishful thinking originally committed us to our high-handed intervention: the same set of agencies and intelligences that inveigled us into the Bay of Pigs disaster.

Instead of using your well-known political adroitness to rescue our country from the miscalculations and political blunders that created our impossible position in Viet Nam, you now, casting all caution to the winds, propose to increase the area of senseless destruction and extermination, without having any other visible ends in view than to conceal our political impotence. In taking this unreasonable course, you not merely show a lack of "decent respect for the opinions of mankind," but you likewise mock and betray all our country's humane traditions.

Before you go farther, let us tell you clearly: your professed aims are emptied of meaning by your totalitarian tactics and your nihilistic strategy. We are shamed by your actions, and revolted by your dishonest excuses and pretexts. What is worse, we are horrified by the immediate prospect of having our country's fate in the hands of leaders who, time and again, have shown their inability to think straight, to correct their errors, or to get out of a bad situation without creating a worse one.

sume, and assume safely, is that the test, as for all presidents, will come in its own good time, probably without advance warning, and from an unexpected quarter.

Secondly, Johnson risks failure by his instinctive concentration on domestic affairs. If the last 20 years have taught anything it is that the primary concern of any modern president does not lie at home. It lies in the disordered world that only he, with his nation's power, can hope to guide.

No Insulation

Nothing will succeed in the Great Society if the world continues its present slide toward anarchy. No domestic device can insulate the United States from the misery of mankind. On the contrary, the growth of American affluence while the human mass sinks steadily into a swamp of hunger and desperation only reveals an intolerable contrast, angers the unfortunate peoples and worsens the basic dilemma.

Wilson and Roosevelt, greatest of modern Democrats, succeeded brilliantly in domestic affairs. Both of them committed tragic mistakes in foreign policy—Wilson at Versailles, Roosevelt at Yalta.

Could Lose All

Their contemporary heir, inheriting the mistakes of other men, now faces the imminent danger of his own Viet Nam. If things go wrong there, or somewhere else he could lose all the hopes of his Great Society.

When Lincoln confessed that he was seldom the master but usually the prisoner of events, he prescribed the inevitable destiny of all presidents. And it is in foreign, domestic leadership that Johnson will control events or, failing there, will fail everywhere.

Supreme Court To Study Indian Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Monday at Ottawa to look into the ancient hunting and fishing rights of Indians.

It made the decision in allowing the Crown leave to appeal a recent decision by the British Columbia Court of Appeal which upheld the right of two members of the Nanaimo band to shoot deer out of season.

W. G. Burke-Robertson, appearing for the Crown, told the court that both the B.C. government and counsel for the Indians were anxious to have the whole matter of treaty rights on Vancouver Island referred to the Supreme Court.

While the court will be looking into the rights of Nanaimo Indians on Vancouver Island, its decision also will have a bearing on Indian hunting and fishing rights elsewhere in Canada, a court official said.

CLOSED SEASON

Clifford White and David Bob, two members of the Nanaimo band, were convicted by Magistrate Beevor-Potts of illegally having carcasses of six deer in their possession during the closed hunting season.

The Indians admitted killing the deer and having no permit. They said they were entitled to shoot the deer for food under a treaty signed in 1851.

The Crown argued that the paper signed in 1851 was not a treaty but a transfer of land between the Hudson's Bay Company and the Nanaimo Indians.

In dismissing the Crown's appeal, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of the B.C. Appeal Court said he agrees with lawyers who said the alleged offence occurred on land once formerly part of the ancient hunting grounds of the Nanaimo tribe.

The Indians' right to hunt on this land had never been abrogated or extinguished and is still in full force and effect, Mr. Justice Norris ruled.

CLAIMS BODY FORECAST IN SPEECH

OTTAWA (CP)—An Indian claims commission to assess and settle all Indian claims and grievances against the federal government was forecast Monday in the throne speech.

Establishment of such a commission would fulfill a promise by Justice Minister Favreau—then the superintendent-general of Indian affairs—made in Winnipeg in 1963.

Mr. Favreau said then the commission likely would consist of a chairman with considerable judicial experience and two other commissioners.

He said Canada's 210,000 Indians comprise a proud minority group which like French-Canadians "refused to die and give up its struggle."

THE NAME'S THE SAME

DUNCAN—Members of Cowichan School Board Monday decided not to change the name to Duncan-Cowichan School Board.

Trustee Wilf Peck said: "If some people are so remiss in their geography not to know the Cowichan Valley then they're not going to know where Duncan is either."

He had received a number of phone calls from local people who were disturbed at the suggestion to change the name. The board would run the risk of awakening ancient animosities which he thought had died.

'PAPER PROGRAM?'

Big Cut Ordered On School Wing

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board's $700,000 budget for a new vocational wing has been slashed to $425,000.

After hearing this Monday, trustee Will Dobson said: "What's the use of playing around with vocational education if we can't get enough equipment?"

However, the board agreed to go ahead with its submission to the education department.

Trustee Wilf Peck asked: "How can we offer the same program for $425,000 as $700,000? There's a danger that this is just a paper program. Either we were pretty lavish before or we are having to economize too drastically now."

CUT CORNERS

Chairman Joseph Frumento explained: "Originally we planned for the ideal situation. Then we saw how much money we were going to get and we had to start cutting corners."

The plan to go to the department is for two one-storey buildings to include an industrial shop area and vocational classrooms plus room for expansion.

Architect Hugh Farmer said the first phase of building would cost $320,000 and the projected second phase, $230,000.

Trustee Neil Dornning said it was "shocking" that it was going to cost $38,000 to rebuild part of Cowichan senior secondary school to accommodate the new wing.

URGENT

He reminded board members the vocational program is urgent.

The Chant Commission called for its introduction in September this year but even if Cowichan went full steam ahead now it couldn't be done before September, 1966.

Mr. Dobson said the education department is having a big say when it is only paying 23 per cent of cost. The federal government will pay 67 per cent and the local district 10 per cent.

ENDING a long career with the RCAF April 16 will be Squadron Leader Philip Allan Townley, chief administrative officer at RCAF Comox. Born in Vancouver, he joined up there in 1937, served overseas during the war and has held administrative and command responsibilities at 14 air force bases, from Cairo to Comox. He came to the Vancouver Island in 1962 from Vancouver where he was commanding officer. A farewell dinner will be held in the officers' mess April 11.

Council Expected to Urge N. Saanich Incorporation

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Incorporation of North Saanich into a district municipality is almost certain to be recommended this month by an eight-man ratepayers' council.

The council, composed of two representatives from four North Saanich ratepayers' associations, has completed its study on forming a district municipality and other alternatives.

It has called a public meeting for April 21 to discuss incorporation. The meeting will be held in North Saanich Secondary School.

Dr. A. B. Nash, chairman, said a plebiscite to decide if the people want to run their own show could take place this year.

MOVE FAST

"Things will move fast after the public meeting," he said. "Once we know what the people want, the necessary machinery will be set up to hold a plebiscite."

Island Digest

He would not disclose the ratepayers council recommendation with regard to forming a separate municipality.

But public opinion in North Saanich seems to favor incorporation. This has been voiced by Northwest Mount Newton District Ratepayers' Association and other groups at Deep Cove and Lands End.

Other alternatives:

1. Amalgamation with Central Saanich.
2. Amalgamation with Sidney.
3. Amalgamation of North Saanich, Sidney and Central Saanich.

However, there is still a strong core of residents on the north end of the peninsula who still want to remain an unorganized district administered by the provincial government.

SHORT-SIGHTED

But a spokesman for a ratepayer's association said this is a short-sighted policy in view of problems which will arise from urban development in the next few years.

The only other alternative which seems to be gaining support in the district is amalgamation with central Saanich. This would eliminate the need to establish a municipal hall, hiring a staff and purchase of equipment.

But Central Saanich has been lukewarm towards amalgamation mainly because such a move would make the municipality responsible for providing water to the whole of the north end of the peninsula.

SCIENTIFIC REVOLUTION

'Get Up To Date' Unionists Told

VANCOUVER (CP)—Political and union leaders Monday warned trade unions to reorganize in the face of growing automation.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, told the opening session of the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union.

"If trade unions are going to survive, they will have to bring their methods up to date so they will organize all workers on an industry-wide basis."

Achieving higher wages in contract negotiations is not enough, he said. Unions must broaden their horizons and become concerned about every aspect of life in what he called the "new scientific revolution."

Mr. Douglas said that with growing automation, fewer men are being employed, and therefore do not have the purchasing power with which to buy goods and keep the economy moving ahead.

He said unions should press for massive public spending on hospitals, schools and road building.

E. P. O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of

Gold Holdings Ease

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars eased off to $2,544,100,000 at the end of March from $2,648,700,000 at the end of February, Finance Minister Gordon reported Monday. The holdings are in terms of U.S. currency.

Labor, told the convention unless unions recognize the necessity to "re-examine" the methods traditionally used to achieve their goals, they will become fraternal organizations with little influence or power.

He said the time has come for "an objective analysis of the structure of trade unions, keeping in mind that whatever power trade unions have developed as the result of mergers must be used to promote not only the economic welfare of the members, but the social welfare of the whole community."

Mr. O'Neal told the delegates: "We can't use sticks and stones to fight the sophisticated management techniques of today."

Harry Bridges of San Francisco, international president of the Longshoremen's union, said trade unionists must go farther than bargaining and consider the social phases of society.

"We sometimes get bogged down in negotiations in seeking greater gains and forget the social effects," he said. He said the U.S., "which is deeply involved in a war in South Viet Nam," should get out of what he called the "family fight" in Southeast Asia.

He described American policy towards Communist China as "cockeyed, stupid and senseless," and called for diplomatic recognition of the Peking regime.

FORD EXPORTS CARS TO U.S.

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ford of Canada has started exporting 400 cars a month to dealers in upper New York state, the first time the company has shipped to the United States, the company said Monday.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. said last week it will build 80,000 cars in 1966 for export to the U.S.

Paget Heads Pollution Board

The provincial cabinet Monday appointed Arthur Paget head of the water pollution control board.

He is deputy minister of water resources.

The move follows changes in legislation which transfers pollution control from the department of municipal affairs to the water resources branch.

Former board chairman was J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs.

Mr. Paget, executive engineer Charles J. Keenan and William Bailey, director of public health engineering, also new appointees, will serve until 1967.

Reappointed for terms ending supervisor of fisheries in the in 1966 were Robert C. McMynn, department of recreation and conservation, and chief forester Findlay S. McKinnon.

Charles Brakenridge, a retired Vancouver engineer and Robert T. Reynolds, a Delta farmer, will continue to serve on the board until the end of this year.

Red Ship, 4 Trawlers Seen Off Washington

SEATTLE (AP)—More Soviet fishing vessels are operating off the northwest Washington coast, a Seattle fisherman reported Monday.

Bernard Hanson, captain of the Seattle trawler McKinley, said he sighted at least four Russian trawlers, accompanied by a mothership. Hanson made the report in a radiotelephone conversation with his wife in Seattle. The McKinley was trawling between 50 and 100 miles west of Cape Flattery.

A scout boat for the Soviet fishing fleet was observed March 25 about 50 miles south-southwest of Cape Flattery.

Fishing industry sources said the Russian vessels off Cape Flattery probably are from a 50-ship fleet sighted last month west of Ketchikan. They said the Russians probably are netting Pacific ocean perch, a plentiful variety of groundfish.

Gordon Going Ahead With Bank Share Curb

OTTAWA (CP)—The throne speech indicates that Finance Minister Gordon will move in this session of Parliament to prevent provincial governments from owning shares in chartered banks, despite stiff opposition from British Columbia and Quebec.

Mr. Gordon announced his intentions Feb. 16, and the move was interpreted as a step to curb the ambitions of the B.C. Social Credit government which had sought the incorporation of a new bank with a block of shares to be held by the province. The bill to incorporate the proposed bank was pigeon-holed by the Senate, and Premier Bennett said his government might buy into existing banks.

'EXTREMELY GRAVE'

Premier Lesage of Quebec said he considered the proposed federal legislation as "extremely grave."

Mr. Gordon has argued that the proposed restriction would not be serious for the provinces. It was important that bank shares be dispersed among many investors, and the federal parliament has exclusive jurisdiction over banking. He said even limited ownership of a bank by any other government could cause confusion over that jurisdiction.

Other limitations which Mr. Gordon said would be written into the Bank Act would include the provision that no individual or corporation, resident in Canada or abroad, may own more than 10 per cent of a bank's outstanding shares.

Red Chinese Aided In 'African Victory'

By JIM HUME

Chinese communists are winning their greatest victory in Africa — so far without opposition.

Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the now defunct federation of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, said here Monday that the metropolitan powers of Europe had unwittingly aided the Chinese master-plan.

The stormy petrel of central African politics for many years, Sir Roy said the policy of granting self-rule to Africans not yet ready for democracy had created the ideal atmosphere for Communist infiltration.

"Each (European nation) for its own reasons pulled out," he said, "leaving behind the bloody mess left by this policy of scuttle."

Sir Roy warned that within five years only a major military operation would be able to root out the now well-established Communists from Africa.

FLOW OF ARMS

A year before Tanzania was granted independence two battalions of Her Majesty's troops could have halted the flow of arms and Communist infiltrators through Zanzibar," he said.

"Today it would take at least two divisions and five years from now it will take a full-scale military operation," he added.

The bulldog faced, deep-voiced, former heavyweight boxing champion and union worker said he was not inclined to see Communists under every bed.

AGAINST SUBVERSION

"With my trade union background I am not opposed to workers trying to better themselves. It is subversion that I am against."

And he claimed that subversion was the order of the day in Tanzania.

"Communist influence has already almost succeeded in cutting Africa in half," he said. "From Zanzibar to Brazzaville they are deeply entrenched. Tanzania has become the Cuba of Africa."

Sir Roy said that though Russia supports the Communist aim to take over Africa, it has only a few field workers on that continent.

"They have the disadvantage of having white faces," he said. "The Chinese are much better off because they can align themselves with the black people."

'NEVER SUBMIT'

The former prime minister said his own country of Southern Rhodesia would never submit to outside pressures to hand over the country to the Bantu people for the bulk of the population.

"We are against the granting of premature independence," he said. "We have seen enough of the murder, massacre and rape that followed such handovers in other parts of Africa. The white man in Southern Rhodesia is not going to stand by and see happen to his women and children what happened in the Congo."

Sir Roy said that people who sneered at his country's stand should pause and consider the facts of recent history.

"One man, one vote gives no protection," he said. "It is no guarantee of democracy but rather a shortcut to dictatorship on the African continent."

SEATS GUARANTEED

He stressed that in Southern Rhodesia, 15 of the 65 seats in parliament were guaranteed to Bantus. "The remaining 50 are open to all comers whatever their race or creed."

To those in the world who sneer at colonialism, Sir Roy said: "What other form of rule would have brought them on so quickly."

He appealed to the combined audience of Canadian Clubs and the Royal Commonwealth Society never to forget the work of "thousands of dedicated men and women who worked for the advance of colonialism."

And he asked them to always remember that "wherever the Union Jack flew there was law, order and justice."

Sir Roy, 58, is no longer active in politics in Southern Rhodesia. He recently resigned his leadership of the United Federal Party and says he is no longer particularly interested in the political scene.

But he still wants to see things "go right" in his country and he wants the world to know his country's position.

'TOUGH GOING ...'

That is why on Monday he launched his cross-country tour of speeches, a chore he describes as "tough going for me."

New Quarters For Air Canada In New York

MONTREAL (UP)—Air Canada will move into a new $20 million passenger terminal at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport early in 1968, it has been announced.

The Canadian carrier will share the new terminal building, being built by British Overseas Airways Corporation, with the British carrier and with Qantas and British West Indian Airways.

Some 1,500,000 passengers are expected to use the terminal during its first year of operation, almost half of whom will be Air Canada customers.

He says he intends to "keep it" because I do not want our story to go untold by default.

Sir Roy said the greatest tragedy of the century had taken place in Africa and yet the story had not been fully told.

"The tragedy of this century is that we have given people the trappings of the real thing and think we have given them democracy," he said.

"The African does not understand democracy as we understand it. He has been brought up and had instilled into him traditions far different from the traditions of tribal rule. He does not understand, and cannot understand in four or five years, opposition in government or the policy of a government in waiting. It has never been his way."

Sir Roy will speak today in Vancouver and then head for eastern Canada and the United States.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

There was a line in a wire service story out of Montreal Monday that should have pleased Bert Olmstead. Eddie Shack, it said, worked out on a line with Bobby Pulford and Ron Stewart.

Shack has spent most of the season with Toronto Maple Leafs sitting on the bench so nobody could steal it. His name came up several times... trade bait for Boston's Johnny Bucyk, demotion to Rochester, which didn't need help, or to Victoria, which did.

But Shack stayed put, probably as some wits have suggested, because he was chained. Now the handcuffs will come off as Punch Imlach, Toronto's geriatric genius, attempts to put mustard into the play of his athletes.

The Leafs need Shack just as they needed Olmstead three years ago.

Olmstead was a tough citizen who played every hockey game for blood, or money. He was extremely intolerant in defeat, a rare competitor who created an air of excitement about him. When he walked in a dressing room complacency fled out the window.

It was Olmstead's militant custom to pick out a playmate and bluster what he considered an inadequate performance.

"You're taking playoff money out of my pocket," Olmstead would say, not quietly, "and nobody takes money out of my pocket. Now get out there and work. Work!"

The Leafs didn't necessarily like Olmstead's tirades, but when he said "work," they could be sure he was the best example of his own advice.

Every Club Needs Combative Catalyst

He was there when the Leafs won the cup in 1962 and some of them remained when they retained it the last two years. But in the first two games against Montreal the combative catalyst that turns athletes into champions seemed to be lacking.

"One player can spark a team," Punch Imlach has said. "One guy who wants to play may only improve a team two or three per cent, but in a short series that's all the extra percentage you need to win."

In Detroit they talk about the fine goalkeeping of Roger Crozier and the 42 goals of Norm Ullman. But the Moses of the Wings is a gent named Howe, a ripe 37. Chicago has Bobby Hull to stoke the fire and in Montreal Henri Richard leads the charge of the bleu-blanc-rouge.

Shack does not rank with them, artistically, intellectually, socially. Neither did Olmstead. But they had the capacity to psychologically stir up their less animated mates simply by putting out until it hurt. Usually it did hurt... somebody else.

Olmstead and Shack were teammates until two years ago when Bert quit after Toronto sloughed him off in the draft. He thought it was a shabby reward for his loyalty.

The Rangers Offer Bert a Challenge

Olmstead stayed out of hockey, tending to his farm near Calgary. He turned down several offers to get back into the game but when Emil Francis was swept into the general manager's chair at New York, Olmstead was the first man he called.

Now he is the Rangers' personnel director, a tall, lean citizen, prowling the peat bogs for livestock that will elevate the New Yorkers out of the sleazy NHL stockyard. He always liked a challenge and the Rangers fit the description.

Olmstead watched the second and third games of the Victoria-Seattle playoff and talked about Shack.

"Sure he could help Toronto," he said in answer to a question.

"But he needs ice. We had a guy like that in New York, Jean Ratelle. Sat on the bench nearly all season. Came off it the last 10 games and was our best centre. He and Rod Gilbert were a couple of firecrackers for us."

"One thing about Shack—you know when he's out there. They all know. Even Howe, Gordie keeps one eye on the play and the other looking for Shack. Howe's smart. Why jeopardize a million-dollar career?"

"The only way to play Shack is one step behind. You never stay even—you never know what he'll do. You stay close, but not even."

Shack Not Exactly a Rhodes Scholar

"But I'll tell you this about Shack. He's got it all. He can skate and shoot and backcheck. And he's got guts to burn."

"Where they make a mistake with him is to fill his head with things to do."

"I noticed when Eddie had one or two things to do on the ice he did them well." What Olmstead was saying is that Edward Shack is not exactly a Rhodes Scholar.

"Funny thing happened one game we played together," Olmstead said.

"I had been helping Eddie, working with him in practices. This night he scored two goals. He came into the room like a kid with a sucker."

"We had adjoining lockers and Shack threw his arms around me and said, 'Bert, you're the greatest teacher in hockey. You've helped me more than anyone.'"

"Then he showered and dressed—and left the room. He didn't talk to me for a month."

"Why? I don't know. I don't think he knew. He's just Eddie Shack."

'Borrowed' Players Return to Mounties

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kansas City Athletics returned 22 borrowed players Monday to the spring Pacific Coast League training camp of Vancouver Mounties at Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Athletics sent eight other players.

Kansas City took the players from the Mounties for use in "B" squad games at their camp in Bradenton.

Manager Haywood Sullivan will look over his new arrivals and then select his own 20-man roster before breaking camp and heading home.

The majority of the players left by Kansas City will be assigned to Birmingham or Lewiston.

The Vancouver lineup at the moment is extremely speculative.

Playoff Date Set

QUEBEC (CP)—The Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semifinals will begin April 12 in either Sydney, N.S., or Summerside, P.E.I., with a double round-robin tournament between the Maritimes, Quebec and Ottawa district champions.

The eight new arrivals are catcher Ken Suarez, outfielder Larry Stahl, and pitchers Lou Krause, Ron Tompkins, Monty Agmonteagudo, John Odum, Bob Meyer and Joe Grzenda.

The Mounties open their season in Vancouver on April 17 when the Spokane Indians will be here to play a doubleheader.

LONDON (Reuters)—The triangular race for the English Football League championship looks likely to continue right through to the end of the season.

ALLEN HOPES SEATTLE

Did Totems Get the Message?

If Seattle Totems didn't get the message, Keith Allen figures they could be in deep trouble.

However, the Seattle coach and general manager also believes its time to call in an optometrist if the Totems did not see the message Victoria Maple Leafs wrote for all to see Saturday night on Memorial Arena ice.

The Leafs charged out of the gate like a pack of quarter-horses and almost demolished the Totems with a tremendous first period of skating. The men of coach Rudy Pilosus jumped into a 3-0 lead and went on for a 5-2 victory in the third game of their best-of-seven Western Hockey League semifinal.

It was a switch in style for the Leafs, who had shown little of their usual vigor on the blades while dropping the first two games of the series at Seattle.

Pilosus, of course, is trying to convince his Leafs they can shunt the Totems to the sidelines by continuing the all-out skating and tenacious checking they displayed Saturday.

Allen today was trying just as hard to convince the Totems they must stay with the Leafs on the ice to stay in the battle for the playoff championship.

"I think it will be a better game tonight," commented Keith, "at least from our angle."

"We should have learned something Saturday. They skated us into the ice. They came out all charged up and won the game in that first period."

"But don't forget it takes two to tango. We'd better be skating with the Leafs or we'll be sitting on the sidelines."

"This is a game of hard work," Allen added, "and if this club works, it can win."

"I think our boys got the message. They saw what happened Saturday night when they didn't skate."

Allen plans only one switch in his lineup. He expects to dress Jean Marie Cossette, the fleet forward who scored three times against the Leafs in one game here during the regular season. Cossette has been out of action with an injury to abdominal muscles.

Pilosus is also expected to go with the same roster that served him so well Saturday. His big problem may be to get the Leafs up to the same notch for tonight's tussle.

One thing appears reasonably certain. Rudy can be expected to again have Larry Keenan checking Seattle scoring champion Guyle Fielder. Keenan held Fielder pointless Saturday and popped in a pair of goals himself.

Whether or not Fielder and the Totems are ready to tango will be learned at Memorial Arena tonight, starting at 8:15.

Empress Golf Medallists Sheila Morgan and Ed Cuppage

RECORD FIELD ...

...IN EMPRESS TOURNEY

Medals for Victorians

Two Victoria golfers fared best in cold breezes around a pair of local courses Monday and grabbed medallist honors in the 35th annual Empress golf tournament.

Ed Cuppage paced a record field of male members by firing a net 64 in the men's qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club and Sheila Morgan earned the medallist role in women's competition with a net 74 on the Uplands course.

Eleven members of a big Calgary contingent qualified for the men's championship chase as the record 176 entries toured the Oak Bay links from early morning until dusk.

Max Hurlburt of Wemme, Ore., last year's medallist, was near the top of the qualifying list with a net 70.

Cuppage, an eight-handicapper from Royal Colwood, faced R. B. Lefever of Calgary in today's opening round of match play.

Mrs. Morgan, also a Colwood member, edged four rivals by a single stroke in play at Uplands. She was scheduled to meet Mrs. R. H. Perkins of Calgary in today's first round.

Victoria swingers, Mrs. E. R. Rickinson and Mrs. A. Dye, also qualified for the women's championship, and R. E. Cranston joined Cuppage in the men's chase.

In Any Hockey League Andy is a Gentleman

Andrew Alex Heberton, 35, right winger, will have to build a bigger trophy chest in his Victoria home.

Old Ironsides added another bauble to his collection this week.

He won the Fred Hume Trophy, awarded to the Western Hockey League player combining the highest standards of sportsmanship, conduct and ability.

He thus becomes the first player to be so honored in two professional leagues. Heberton won the Lady Byng trophy as a member of New York Rangers in 1956-57. He already holds the record for consecutive games in pro hockey.

Heberton played 70 games for Portland, amassed 34 goals and 40 assists and was tagged for only 16 minutes in penalties.

He received 173 points.

FIELDER SECOND

Seattle's Guyle Fielder, the league's high scorer with 92 points, was second in voting with 116 points. Fielder spent 38 minutes in the penalty box.

After that it wasn't close. Vancouver's Phil Maloney (29 goals, 52 assists, 18 minutes in penalties) was third with 72 points, one more than Victoria's Lou Jankowski (70-27-16).

Milan Marcetta of Victoria was ninth with 38 points (21 minutes in penalties); Gordie Redahl of Victoria had seven points and teammate Larry Keenan six.

Thirty-nine players received points. But some of the players who voted displayed quaint comic characteristics. Howie Young received some votes, the same Young who led the WHL in sin with 227 minutes in 65 games.

Len Haley of San Francisco was another vote-catcher, 113 minutes in jail and all. Victoria's Sandy Hucul, 106 minutes, received one first-place vote worth five points.

Dodgers Get Koufax Back

LOS ANGELES (AP)—South-paw pitcher ace Sandy Koufax has responded to treatment for traumatic arthritis of his left elbow and will return to Los Angeles Dodgers training base tonight, a team spokesman announced Monday.

Vice-president Red Patterson said in a statement the swelling of Koufax' left elbow has been sufficiently reduced for him to return to the club.

"Sandy will be permitted to set his own pace on conditioning himself and will not be asked to pitch until he says he's ready to do so, and only as often as he says he's ready."

at the Racquet Club Monday he belongs with the best.

Macdonnell took two out of three sets from Robert McCoig, Scotland's outstanding player. Wayne had defeated McCoig last week in the Canadian championships at Edmonton.

The match was one of four featuring English and Scottish aces with top Canadians.

McCoig and Tony Jordan, an English International representative, teamed to defeat Macdonnell and Victoria's Bob Hunt in doubles. Jennifer Pritchard, one of England's best women players, was always in control in her single game with Vancouver's Mimi Nilsson.

In mixed doubles Jordan and Pritchard were handy winners over McCoig and Mrs. Nilsson.

Rookies, Big Frank Bear Leafs' Burden

TORONTO (CP)—Ron Ellis and Peter Stelmowski have a lot in common.

Both are rookie National Hockey Leaguers getting their first taste of Stanley Cup play, both are just one season away from junior hockey after sparking Toronto Marlboros to the national title and both have Frank Mahovlich.

And while coach Punch Imlach won't admit it, on this trio rests the goal Toronto Maple Leafs require if they're to repeat as Stanley Cup champions.

So far, neither the Leafs nor the Mahovlich-Stelmowski-Ellis line has produced and the Leafs trail Montreal Canadiens 2-0 in the best-of-seven semifinal. The teams meet again tonight at Toronto.

But Ellis, a 23-goal scorer during the regular season and a leading candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors, and Stelmowski, who came up from Rochester of the American League in mid-season, have endeared themselves to Toronto fans.

With Mahovlich, who also scored 23 goals, they formed a potent scoring unit during the last month of the regular schedule.

CREDIT BIG M

And while both credit the Big M with instilling confidence, Ellis and Stelmowski—as Stelmowski is called by his team-mates—have been earmarked for the big leagues since their junior days. It was just a matter of time before they cashed in on that ability.

They're finding the going tougher during the current series than they did during the season, but each is taking it in stride.

"We expected the checking would be closer... and it is," said 20-year-old Ellis. "I find that everyone's playing a defensive game—each man just wants to stick close to his check."

"It's become a game of breaks," said Stelmowski, a strapping six-footer from Winnipeg who came east with the Marlboros two years ago. "Once the playoffs started, it was as if the final standings had been forgotten."

After two games of the Montreal series, Stelmowski offered one reason why the Canadiens have managed to take a commanding lead.

"They're hitting a lot more... something they didn't do during the year. They're really throwing their weight around."

HAD COLLISIONS

Ellis can attest to the thumping. He twice collided with the Canadiens' all-star defenceman Jacques Laperriere in the opening game but Laperriere was decked both times. Ellis is a firm believer in hitting the other man first in order to maintain a "psychological advantage."

Another of Imlach's more astute pupils, defenceman Kent Douglas, was missed in the Leafs' 3-1 loss to the Canadiens Saturday as he sat out a one-game suspension assessed by NHL president Clarence Campbell—the result of a stick-swinging duel.

Imlach refers to Douglas as the anchor man on the Leaf power plays and his absence—since the mid-way mark of the first period in the series-opener—has been felt.

The Canadiens have scored four of their six goals to date on power plays while the Leafs have yet to notch a goal while holding a man advantage.

Douglas, the first NHL defenceman to win the Calder Trophy in his rookie season of 1962-63, is noted for his puck control and as an opportunist quick to take advantage of an opponent's defensive lapses.

"It's something I picked up from Eddie Shore at Springfield. His theories on handling the puck were better for defencemen than forwards and we had a chance to use these ideas in a rink the size of Springfield's."

REAY HINTS

'Scooter' Line Has to Produce

CHICAGO (CP)—Chicago Black Hawks, who trail Detroit Red Wings two games to nothing in the Stanley Cup best-of-seven semifinal series, know only too well they are in a bad spot.

But coach Billy Reay kept insisting Monday that "this series is a long way from over."

It's a tough road back for a club that has to win four of five games, but the Hawks don't have to go back too far to recall how it was done.

In the 1962 series against Montreal Canadiens, Chicago, then coached by Rudy Pilous, was down 2-0 in games and headed for oblivion.

Then the unexpected happened. They caught fire and dumped the fast-skating Canadiens in four straight to reach the final. However the comeback drive apparently sapped their strength, and they bowed to Toronto Maple Leafs in six games.

The record books will show that it was centre Stan Mikita and left-winger Bobby Hull who sparked the Hawks to victory over the Canadiens. It appears the current Chicago club will need some of the same help to strike back against the National Hockey League champion Wings.

GET CHANCE

The Hawks get another chance tonight when they play host to Detroit in the third game of the set. The fourth game is scheduled for here Thursday night.

Reay is receiving the expected mileage out of the muscular Hull—three goals in two games—but Mikita has been below par. It's been the same story the last couple of years. Mikita wins the NHL scoring championship and then disappears in the playoffs.

The quiet-spoken Reay is only too well aware of this fact.

"If we can get a little more out of a couple of guys, we've got a good chance to even things up here," he said Monday.

He didn't mention any names but it was quite obvious the Chicago mentor was referring to his "scooter" line of Mikita, left-winger Doug Mohns and right-winger Kenny Wharram.

This was the Hawks' toughest line during the season—they accounted for 65 goals with Mikita winning the scoring championship—but the Wings have done a splendid job holding the scooters at bay.

HULL CARRIES CLUB

With the failure of Mikita and company to dent the Wings' defence, Hull has once again been forced to carry the club. But results have shown in the past that one man can't do the job.

While Chicago is receiving standup goaltending from veteran Glenn Hall and Denis DeJordy, the defensive unit leaves a lot to be desired.

In both losses, the Hawks defencemen started out on the right note, bottling up the Wing offence by moving in right against the Detroit blueline. But as the games progressed, they began backing up, letting the Wings come to them, and on both occasions it proved disastrous.

Part of Chicago's defensive ineffectiveness can be blamed on a painful side injury which Pierre Pilote suffered prior to the close of the season. Because of it, Pilote, always a standout in the playoffs has been unable to hand out too many solid bodychecks.

Return of His Putting Touch Gives Hogan Shot at Masters

By MILTON RICHMAN

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Ben Hogan's putter finally has come around to the point where some early Masters arrivals insisted today the one-time terror of the fairways again must be rated a chance.

"It would be only a longshot," confessed the 52-year-old two-time winner of this prestigious golf event which officially gets underway Thursday, "but I feel I have a chance."

"For the first time in a long while I'm starting to see some daylight on the greens. That's encouraging to me but I'm not at all satisfied with the rest of my game. I'm just not hitting the ball well."

The touring pros will tell you Hogan still is the equal of anyone, and they emphasize the word anyone, from tee to green. The only reason he was missing from the winner's circle for the past few years, they add, was because he simply couldn't putt.

PROUD INDIVIDUAL

Being the inordinately proud individual he is, Hogan shied away from the tour rather than finish among the far back also-rans.

He once said he never would think of entering any tournament he didn't think he could win and as far as he's concerned, it still goes.

"If I didn't feel I had a chance to win here, I wouldn't have bothered coming in the first place," he said, in that cold-steel tone he made famous when he ruled the golfing roost. "I had hoped for more work before I got here but the weather was so bad back home in Texas that I couldn't get in much golf."

Hogan won his first Masters' title in 1951 and his second in 1953 with a 72-hole total of 274 strokes which still stands as an all-time record. He also finished second four times, including twice in playoffs.

Macken said the six players will go to a training camp in northern California on May 20. Bardsley and Puddicombe, who have been training at the University of British Columbia under coach Paul Willey, will get some advance practice on American courses.

They are scheduled to be on tour from April 27 to May 18, playing 13 intercollegiate matches in the U.S.

Canadian Rowing Given Go-Ahead

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Canadian rowing has been given the go-ahead to continue preparations for its centennial international invitation regatta, scheduled for St. Catharines in 1967.

Tentative sanction for the event, which will bring the world's leading oarsmen and scullers to Canada for the first time, comes from the International Rowing Federation, the governing body of world rowing.

Final approval hangs on the completion of a $1,000,000 remedial program being carried out on the Henley course here and the setting of rowing dates.

Canadian-Bred Austria-Bound

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Tom Schneiberg, 35, a naturalized Canadian, returns to his native Austria Friday with a unique Canadian export—a standard-bred stallion.

Schneiberg's travelling companion leaving Montreal Airport for Vienna is the first Canadian-bred stallion exported to a European country for breeding, Canadian Trotting Association records show.

The horse is five-year-old Armbr Duke, bred and raced by Ted and Elgin Armstrong of Brampton. He'll go to the stud farm at Wiener Trabrennerei.

Shamrocks Get First Test Against New Boxla Club

Hockey and bowling and badminton are still front and centre on the sports scene but lacrosse is standing in the wings, perched for takeoff.

Boxla buffs can give their lungs their first workout of the season here April 24. Victoria Shamrocks, with a new coach and some new players, host the Intercity Lacrosse League's newest entry, Coquitlam, in an exhibition clash at Memorial Arena.

Four days later the Rocks open league play here against New Westminster.

BALANCED SCHEDULE

The Rocks first away game is May 4 in Vancouver. After that the Rocks will embark on a balanced schedule which will have them playing 14 more home and away games each.

Jim McNeill, Shamrocks' freshman coach, plans to step up workouts as opening day approaches.

Already going through two indoor sessions a week at Oak Bay High School, the Rocks will move into Stevenson Park Sunday.

MAY TRY NANAIMO

And if Memorial Arena continues to be tied up by the Western Hockey League Victoria Maple Leafs, McNeill will take his troops to Nanaimo Arena for heavy drills.

Victoria's junior Shamrocks open their season May 4 at New Westminster. Other teams in the junior loop are South Vancouver Legion and Coquitlam. The juniors will play a balanced schedule of 12 games at home and 12 away this year.

Biologists Oppose Banff Site

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Society of Wildlife and Fishery Biologists has appealed to Prime Minister Pearson and the International Olympic Games Committee to hold the 1972 winter Olympic Games at a site other than Banff.

In a letter to the prime minister and the games committee, the biologists expressed opposition to expanding sports facilities in Banff National Park to accommodate the Olympics.

The letter was approved as a resolution of the society's fourth national conference during the weekend. It was the first such conference held outside Ottawa.

The conference with one dissenting vote out of about 100 delegates to the convention, approved the letter which said:

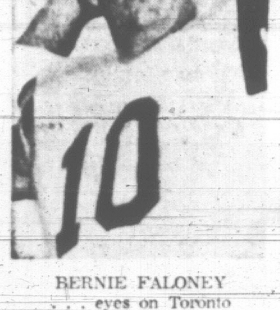

"This society considers that the holding of winter Olympic games in national parks would cause serious localized changes in the environment and would be incompatible with the primary function of national parks, namely to preserve the natural features of national parks unimpaired for future generations."

The letter expressed concern over the "likely destruction" of some of the natural features of the parks.

The letter said that if no other suitable site could be obtained, "thorough consideration" should be given to the possibility of holding some of the events of the games, especially those requiring construction of special facilities, outside park boundaries.

Bernie Will Stay Home Unless Price is Right

BERNIE FALONEY eyes on Toronto

REGINA (CP) — Quarterback Bernie Faloney says if he can't negotiate a contract with Montreal Alouettes and if the Al's then refuse to trade him to Toronto Argonauts he is prepared to sit out the 1965 Eastern Football Conference season.

Faloney was traded to Montreal during the off-season in a seven-player deal after guiding Hamilton Tiger-Cats to seven Grey Cup finals in eight years.

"I am asking for a large increase in my playing salary if I go to Montreal for compensation for the business interests I'll have to give up in Hamilton," Faloney said Monday during a press conference.

He denied he had asked Montreal for a $200,000 three-year contract. "I won't say how it (the report) got started, but I didn't furnish anybody with that information."

"I am asking for a big contract strictly on the basis of what Bernie Faloney can do as a quarterback."

"The new CFL naturalization rule, or the big salaries being paid to college stars in the United States had nothing to do with my decision to ask for a large increase."

Faloney said he had many business interests in Hamilton and in order to give them up, he would have to receive adequate compensation.

TORONTO WILL DO

"If I can't negotiate with Alouettes, then I would like to be traded to Toronto, where I could still play football and keep an eye on my business."

"If I can't work out something along those lines, then there is a good possibility I will sit out the coming season."

He said he hadn't discussed contract with Montreal officials since March 3, and hadn't accepted what already had been offered him.

"My salary is a private affair between myself and the club with whom I am dealing and I don't think it should be divulged until after a contract is signed."

Faloney said he felt good physically and thought he could play "another three to five years" of good football.

He said at one time it would not have mattered whom he played for but now after spending eight years in one city — he wasn't going to move unless the price was right.

Questioned about the naturalization rule which allows only three naturalized Canadians on each club, Faloney, a naturalized Canadian, said, "it stinks."

"But I don't think I need to go into that — everybody knows my views on that situation. I only hope the CFL rescinds that ruling at its meeting in June."

Faloney was in Regina to speak to a sportsmen's banquet.

Model Names Clete Boyer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A second New York Yankee, third baseman Clete Boyer, was charged Saturday with assault and battery in the bar-room beating of a male model.

Jerome Modelzewski, 25, swore out the warrant.

Modelzewski said two men beat him up Thursday morning. He identified Roger Maris as one of them and signed a warrant Thursday night charging him with assault and battery.

DORION PROBE

'Who Erred?'
Lawyer Asks

QUEBEC (CP)—The conduct of Justice Minister Favreau and the RCMP was pointedly questioned Monday as the Dorion judicial inquiry entered the final stages of its investigation of the Lucien Rivard affair.

In a day-long summation, Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins suggested Chief Justice Frederic Dorion must decide whether Mr. Favreau was wrong not to consult legal advisers in a case involving a political colleague and himself.

He posed Chief Justice Dorion four questions about Mr. Favreau's decision Sept. 18 not to lay charges against Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister.

POSES QUESTIONS

Besides asking whether Mr. Favreau erred in making the decision himself, M. Desjardins asked:

1. Should Mr. Favreau have immediately notified Prime Minister Pearson and Postmaster-General Tremblay, then Immigration Minister and Denis' boss, about the involvement of Denis and Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson at the time, in an investigation of bribery and coercion allegations?

2. Should Mr. Favreau have ordered the RCMP to continue investigations into the allegations of Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne?

3. Should the minister lay charges only when convinced that a trial will bring conviction or decide merely whether there is sufficient evidence to warrant a court hearing.

He noted that Mr. Favreau had decided there was a lack of corroboration of Mr. Lamontagne's charges that Denis offered him $20,000 to agree to the release on bail of Rivard.

NABBED LAST JUNE

Rivard was arrested last June 19 for United States authorities as a key figure in a huge international narcotics smuggling conspiracy. Mr. Lamontagne acted for the U.S. in court proceedings to have Rivard extradited to Texas. Rivard went over the wall of Bordeaux Jail March 2 and the federal government put a $15,000 price on his head.

With respect to the RCMP investigation of Mr. Lamontagne's allegations, Mr. Desjardins posed questions and offered comments about policemen ranging from Commissioner G. B. McClellan to Constable Gilles Poissant.

He said Chief Justice Dorion must decide whether the police investigation probed deeply enough, whether the RCMP off-cers acted with diligence and whether further questioning might have shed new light on the case which would have changed Mr. Favreau's decision.

He asked whether the chief investigator, Inspector J. P. Drapeau, had been given sufficient freedom to investigate, remarking that he seemed not to have been given the latitude he wished.

The commission would have to decide whether Commissioner McClellan and his senior deputies had been influenced by Mr. Favreau and, in issuing orders to Inspector Drapeau, had diminished the officer's effectiveness.

QUESTIONS REASON

Mr. Desjardins suggested the RCMP had not seemed to offer a sufficiently valid reason for not recording a key telephone call between Mr. Lamontagne and Denis Aug. 20. Any normal office recording device could have been used without tipping off Mr. Lamontagne's staff that their boss was co-operating with RCMP in a monitored phone call.

Former Sgt. Ronald Crevier hadn't been able to take notes of the call because he was holding the phone in both hands. Constable Poissant had scribbled notes on a gas bill which he later lost.

And Sgt. Crevier, aware that money was available to help free Rivard, had contradicted testimony by Mr. Lamontagne that the Montreal lawyer had informed him of pressure on him to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Mr. Desjardins said Chief Justice Dorion will have to decide whether Mr. Rouleau, who resigned Nov. 24 as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary when the Rivard affair broke in the Commons, was trying to cover up something by giving the inquiry "an erroneous fact".

It would have been impossible for Mr. Rouleau to have done what he testified—called Mr. Lamontagne before the Montreal lawyer was called in the Rivard affair by Andre Letendre, executive assistant to Mr. Favreau.

The timing of the call was important because if Mr. Rouleau called Mr. Lamontagne after Mr. Letendre and Guy Lord, another aide to Mr. Favreau at the time, "we may wonder whether he was trying to exercise influence."

Two suggested locations for a centennial sports centre are "worthy of consideration," Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said today.

Saanich has investigated the north end of Cedar Hill Golf Course but has not studied closely another site on the west side of Mount Douglas.

The two sites were suggested by a sub-committee of the Greater Victoria Sports Council for a 20,000-seat stadium.

"I wouldn't like to say whether one is good and the other is bad," said Reeve Curtis, who has also suggested a stadium as a joint Greater Victoria centennial project.

A liquor store in Saanich is still being sought, said Reeve Curtis.

Saanich was "working actively" assisting the Liquor Control Board in locating a suitable site.

He declined to say how near Saanich is to getting its first liquor store.

Last fall, the LCB proposed a site at Borden and Reynolds, but council turned the rezoning application down at a public hearing after vigorous opposition because the site is near a planned school.

Public hearings will be called in Saanich on four rezoning applications.

N.Y. SUBWAY
TARGET

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert Wagner announced Monday night an emergency program to cope with "the roughnecks and the wolf packs of young brutes and sadists who have terrorized and tormented subway riders."

He assigned a policeman to every train from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m.

The nighttime-early morning patrols of trains by policemen will begin Wednesday, Wagner said.

The 800 policemen on this special shift will augment the transit authority police force.

OAK BAY DOCTOR

'Encourage Home-Office
Development'

An Oak Bay doctor Monday night protested a proposed by-law which would prohibit establishment of professional offices in residential zones.

The move has been approved in committee but has not come before council.

Dr. P. M. Wolfe, 2311 Oak Bay Avenue, said "the establishment of office-home practices, the decentralization of medico-dental offices, and the construction of peripheral nursing homes should be encouraged rather than discouraged."

At an earlier committee meeting Coun. Dr. Harold Carter said home offices for doctors and dentists are a relic of "the horse and buggy days."

At present, only doctors and dentists are permitted to establish offices in residential zones.

Dr. Wolfe said his office building, which is shared by dentists, does not constitute a parking problem.

He added the office does not devalue properties in the area.

He said a doctor living in the community gains a "more subtle knowledge" of his patients.

Many of his patients are elderly and do not like driving to a doctor located in a busy downtown district, he said.

Chiang Foes
On Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A university professor educated in Canada and two of his students have been given long sentences by a military court for a 7,000-word declaration advocating the overthrow of the Chinese Nationalist government.

After a trial that began March 27, the court Friday found the three Formosa natives guilty of sedition.

Professor Peng Ming-min, 41, a graduate of McGill University in Montreal and a member of the faculty of the National Taiwan University, and Wei Ting-chao, 33, got eight years each. Hsieh Tsung-min, 31, editor of the small monthly magazine China Today and author of the declaration, got 10 years.

Hsieh said 9,000 copies of the declaration were printed but none was distributed. Peng admitted having read the declaration but denied inspiring it or correcting it.

Funeral Service
On Wednesday
For Woman, 98

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 9 a.m. for a 98-year-old Victoria woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Cashin Williams, who died Saturday.

Mrs. Williams had been a patient at Mount St. Mary Hospital since 1952. She died at the hospital.

She was born in Cape Boyle, Newfoundland, and lived in Vancouver before moving to Victoria.

Mrs. Williams is survived by one son, Edward J. Williams of Vancouver; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Prayers will be read in Chaplin's Funeral Chapel tonight at 7:30 p.m. Funeral services will be in St. Andrew's Cathedral and burial in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Announce New Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation-H Suppositories or Preparation-H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Jonquiere Repairs
Under Way

Permanent repairs to the bow of ocean escort HMCS Jonquiere were under way today at HMC Dockyard.

The Esquimalt-based warship rammed a ferry jetty during a recent trip to San Francisco.

The ship took out several pilings, but a detailed check of the jetty revealed damage ranged between $6,000 to $7,000, not $20,000 as earlier reported.

The permanent repairs, to cost $4,500, will take a maximum of three weeks, a naval spokesman said today.

A temporary patch, welded over a gaping hole in the bow by the USN's San Francisco yard, cost $3,500.

Meanwhile, a naval board of inquiry into the incident continued today.

WITHOUT CHRISTIANITY

Education Begets Agnostic, Sceptic

Modern-secular education is producing the "intelligent sceptic" and the "well-informed agnostic," Brother J. B. Clarkson, principal of St. Louis College, said Monday night.

"It is producing a generation of mindless technicians. This is what we should be concerned with today," he told the University of Victoria Alumni Association.

Brother Clarkson was a member of a panel examining the role of the independent school in education today.

"In Christian schools, the development of the whole personality, including the inner needs as an essential, is emphasized."

"INSEPARABLE"

"A secondary purpose of education is to supply society with skilled technicians and it is obvious the primary and secondary aims are inseparable."

"In the modern age the secondary purpose is sometimes over-emphasized."

"It is through his reason that man is in touch with his Creator and his reasoning is an educational process."

"The teaching process must cultivate such qualities as the nature of man to develop every worthwhile element in man."

Brother Clarkson said the ideal teaching process must be based on the nature and destiny of man.

BEST EQUIPPED

"Religious beliefs must be the foundation of our education system and the Christian, because of his philosophy, is best equipped to educate man to his fullest."

"A robot theory of education concentrating on the material concept are the fundamental dogmas of modern secular education."

"It is no wonder children are seeking unrealistic goals—they have no ultimate goal."

"SHALLOW, NEGATIVE"

"The philosophy is shallow, negative," he said.

Another panelist, Mrs. Rosemary Penn, a teacher at Queen Margaret School, said girls' private schools in Canada are examining themselves closely.

"If they are to be more than quiet alternatives to noisy public schools they must reach for academic excellence and a greater awareness of spiritual values," she said.

Private School Aid By Taxation Urged

Support of private schools in B.C. through taxation was suggested Monday night by E. R. Larsen, headmaster of Shawnigan Lake Boys' School.

"Providing independent schools can provide proper academic standing, parents of children attending the school should be allowed to direct their taxes toward the school," said Mr. Larsen.

He was a member of a panel examining the role of the independent school in education today at a meeting of the University of Victoria Alumni Association.

"In this country there is a serious prejudice against private schools and most of it springs from five things," said Mr. Larsen.

Court Quashes Conviction Of Woman

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today ordered a new trial for Mrs. Olive Rustad, Vancouver, now serving an eight-year prison term after being convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of her mother-in-law.

The court ordered that Mrs. Rustad's conviction in the death of Mrs. Thirne Rustad, 80, be quashed.

A Vancouver court found Mrs. Rustad guilty of a reduced charge of manslaughter Dec. 5, 1963. An appeal against the conviction was rejected Aug. 5, 1964, by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

"There is an idea that because they are private schools there is a private profit. The fact is most are non-profit and are operated as an educational trust."

"There is also some resentment about the private school fees from people who can't pay, but private schools regret this also."

"I believe all schools should be free and equally accessible, but until the government becomes sufficiently enlightened in providing funds for education, we will just have to do what we can with scholarships."

LIBERAL EDUCATION

"Critics of the private school system like to suggest that some of our teachers have poor standards simply because they have not taken department of education teacher training. Many are much better for it because they have a liberal education on the nature of man, civilization and education."

"Some people believe private schools are bad because they create a 'Type,'" said Mr. Larsen.

"Well, they do create a type—decent, honorable and responsible citizens."

"The question to be asked is does it create a good type?"

Mr. Larsen said he was not supporting private schools against public schools.

"Public schools are the cornerstone of our education system. But it is becoming more evident independent schools have a definite role to play also. Both complement and supplement each other."

DAM TO GET CAR BODIES

SALMON ARM (CP)—Taking a tip from Sweden, old car bodies will be flattened by bulldozers and used in the construction of a dam to prevent silting and divert the Salmon River back into its old channel.

Meal Wagon To Operate In Saanich

A project believed unique in B.C. and perhaps western Canada will be started soon in Saanich.

Councillors unanimously approved Monday night a pilot project to provide one hot meal a day for five days a week at a cost of 50 cents a meal for aged and infirm persons.

Coun. Harold Todd, chairman of the health and welfare committee, described the project as not only humanitarian but practical because it may relieve the burden in chronic care hospital wards.

It was designed to help persons who don't have the time or energy to cook meals. Voluntary helpers would serve meals from a truck Saanich is acquiring.

He said it is the first project of its kind in the province and perhaps in western Canada.

The municipality's welfare administrator had a list of 30 people and this would be sufficient for a start.

Tory Hits Political 'Amnesia'

DELHI, Ont. (CP)—Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative party Monday night accused Prime Minister Pearson of using "political amnesia" to keep facts from his party.

"Politics and government will not be the same again if this sort of conduct is endorsed by the Canadian people," he told the annual meeting of the Norfolk-Progressive Conservative Association.

"We now have established a precedent whereby any prime minister may shield his party from any wrong or any suggestion of wrong by laying claim to political amnesia."

Mr. Camp said that when the Lucien Rivard case came to light, the prime minister remained on the Prairies "hiding from the fray."

When he returned "reluctantly and tardily" to his place in Parliament he misled Parliament by denying any previous knowledge of the affair, he said.

Where Are the Victorians Who Cried for Top Shows?

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

For more years than I care to think about, Victorians have been besieging me with their complaints about having no auditorium and no good road shows or professional theatre of any kind.

GARDEN

We now have our own theatre, and this week we have one of the finest companies occupying the McPherson Playhouse that has come to the city since the Paul Robeson Othello.

But we will probably never see it like again. For the same Victorians who talked so much ignored the presence of the Seattle Repertory Theatre and stayed away en masse.

DEPRESSING
Monday night's opening performance of Twelfth Night, performed to gaping rows of empty seats. Entering the McPherson, pitifully dotted with 51 persons, was one of the most depressing and embarrassing experiences of my life.

But the brilliance of the players and the beauty of the production triumphed even over this deadening effect.

Of such professional calibre is this company and possessed of such spirit, that Twelfth Night was air-borne from its first moment and swept the audience aloft with it.

HIGHEST POLISH

Lit, set and costumed superbly the settings are a delightful combination of charm, elegance and flexibility—the mounting is matched by acting that is blithe, lyrical and technically often highest polish.

Judith Doty's Viola, the shipwrecked girl who masquerades as a boy, is enchanting and graceful. William Myers goes a long way toward eclipsing my memories of Donald Wolfit's Malvolio, the vain, foolish steward of Countess Olivia's household. The famous letter scene is devastatingly funny and brilliant.

Feste, the fool, most effectively played as a West Indian by Stephen Joyce; Thomas Hill's Sir Toby and Archie Smith's vapid knight, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, were only slightly more impressive performances in the whole excellent roster.

FINE BALANCE

Director Stuart Vaughan has provided many refreshing and imaginative ideas. He has handled the comedy characters

Teacher's Funeral On Thursday

Funeral service will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church for Maurice P. Connor, vice-principal of Claremont Senior High School, who died at his home Monday.

A prayer service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in McCall Bros. Chapel.

Mr. Connor, 61, was born in Waukon, Iowa, and had been a resident of Victoria since 1942.

He taught school in Saanich since his arrival in Victoria. He is survived by the widow, Agnes; three sons, Patrick, Courtenay; Denis, Vancouver, and Terry, at home; two daughters, Mrs. Maureen Sager, Vancouver, and Elia Mae, at home; two grandchildren; and three brothers and two sisters.

Trailer Club Meets Next Week

Dogwood Trailer Club of B.C., Vancouver Island Unit, will meet April 13 at 8 p.m. at Holyrood House, 2315 McBride Avenue.

Plans and rallying dates for the coming season will be discussed, followed by a box supper.

An insurance company representative will address the meeting on trailer insurance. The meeting is open to anyone owning a trailer or a camper.

Dogwood Trailer Club has grown to 130 units in member groups in Victoria, Sidney, Duncan, Ladysmith, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Courtenay and Port Alberni since it was formed about a year ago.

Armchair Tour Of S. America Resumes Thursday

Victorians will have the opportunity to make an armchair tour of Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil Thursday night.

George Vincent of Victoria will be tour leader for the slide and commentary program shown at 8 p.m. at Oak Bay Junior High.

Mr. Vincent, his wife, Jane, and their two small children, took the slides during a one-year, 50,000-mile trip through South America, from which they returned recently.

They showed three previous programs taking them from Ecuador through Peru, Bolivia, Chile and to the Galapagos Islands.

Thursday's journey will start in Buenos Aires and travel by the Andean foothills to Uruguay returning via Georgetown, British Guiana.

B.C. Furrier Dies
VANCOUVER (CP)—G. L. Pop, 78, prominent Vancouver furrier, taxidermist and big game hunter, will be buried here Wednesday. Mr. Pop, who emigrated here in 1918 from Budapest after visiting Canada on a 1904 hunting expedition, died in hospital Saturday.

with a deft and lighter touch than is customary and the result is a finer balance between the comedy and idyllic romance elements.

The timid sword fight scene between Viola and Sir Andrew is hilariously funny and one of the play's vivid highlights.

Music throughout, especially the effective folk style singing of Feste, is exactly right as to amount and kind.

There will be performances of Twelfth Night tonight and on Wednesday, including a matinee. On Thursday, the four performances of Ah Wilderness, Eugene O'Neill's rich comedy begins.

Remembering the rapt faces of 800 Seattle school kids at the matinee I attended there, makes me hope that something can be done to get our students to a performance, although arrangements should have been made weeks ago.

FORMER ACTOR Tom Neal was formally charged with murder in Palm Springs, Calif., Monday in the fatal shooting of his wife last Friday.

'NOT ENOUGH PEOPLE OR $$$ FOR MEDICARE'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada will not be able to afford the comprehensive medical care insurance plan recommended by The Hall-Howard Commission on Health Services "for another 10 years," Dr. C. P. Gendron, Montreal, outgoing president of the College of General Practice of Canada, said Monday.

"We haven't got enough people, enough dollars, enough hospitals. We haven't got the base laid down in the 1950 report," he said in an interview.

Dr. Gendron said he does not argue with the principles of insurance for everybody as embodied in the Hall Commission report. But, he said, the country was not ready.

Education To Get Nod Over Welfare

TORONTO (CP)—Top priority in government spending should go to developing education and other resources instead of more welfare programs, Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said Monday.

He told a press conference that the time may have come for a pause in welfare advances while more attention is paid to other needs.

"This doesn't mean that I'm opposed to welfare—that's good if you can afford it," he said. "But it should increase only as the tax basis climbs and meanwhile other areas should be given priority."

Mr. Thatcher, here to address a board of trade meeting, said Saskatchewan is allowing $11,000,000 this year for university capital expansion "and we're just scratching the surface."

Saskatchewan would be short 5,000 skilled workers this summer, but did not have the resources to build technical schools and colleges needed to train them.

Mr. Thatcher made these other points in his wide-ranging press conference:

A major job for his government after nine months in office is to persuade industry that "the war against business is over" in Saskatchewan.

During the two decades after the Second World War, while the CCF party formed the government, industries were reluctant to locate in Saskatchewan. There had been a tremendous economic activity recently, with a dozen major industries moving into the province.

Although potash remains the brightest light in the province's hopes for economic growth, the biggest boom now is in oil explorations.

The previous government had many "difficulties" with oil companies but changes in taxes and other factors had attracted dozens of companies. The increased exploration was expected to add $7,000,000 to the budget this year.

Saskatchewan would continue its program of encouraging mineral exploration. Several major companies had moved into the province recently to start looking for minerals and more money would be found to subsidize prospecting.

Saskatchewan put up $500,000 to pay 50 per cent of exploration costs and that was taken up in three weeks. But the program was too important to let it fall.

MILLIONS OF BOARD FEET OF LUMBER are awaiting shipment this month at Ogden Point. During March, 19,835,635 board feet were shipped out of city bound mainly for United Kingdom and United States ports. Figure was slightly below that of March, 1964, which reached 23,112,958. However, shipments are still above those of last year by about five million board feet.

and lumber exporters still have an excellent chance of surpassing the record export set in 1963. Total so far this year, not counting scow shipments to Vancouver, is 70,291,957 board feet. ## 1,500 Plead For Tilikum

The Keep-Tilikum-Free petition was being sent to City Hall today with more than 1,500 supporting names. G. R. "Rebel" Mowat, a city tour bus operator who headed a one-man drive to have the famed world-travelled dugout left on free exhibition, said, "Now it's up to the council."

"Not all of the people who signed the petition are Victoria residents—some of them come from Duncan and Nanaimo—and there may be a few tourists among them."

"But they are all people who love Victoria and who love Tilikum. They object to seeing her become a commercial enterprise," said Mr. Mowat.

"They may not all be voters, but there is a significant number of the people who made Victoria the community it has become named on the last. I hope council will pay heed to them."

City Hall today also received a letter from Mrs. B. F. Kuhn of Portland, Ore., the daughter of John Voss, the Victorian who sailed Tilikum on her history-making voyage almost 65 years ago.

'DEEPLY HURT'

"I am truly shocked and deeply hurt that anyone would have the audacity to commercialize the old canoe," she wrote. Her father would not have approved, she was sure, nor would "the good people" of Victoria. Tilikum was displayed in Thunderbird Park until recently when it was moved by provincial authorities to the Maritime Museum which will open in the old Bastion Street Courthouse this fall—where an admission fee will be charged.

Mr. Mowat said he understands there is some reluctance by officials to consider moving Tilikum back to her old stand.

Villages Pause at High Noon To Remember a Missing Friend

The villages of Ucluelet and Tofino, on Vancouver Island's west coast, went in mourning today.

Businessmen, fishermen and housewives dropped what they were doing at noon to pay silent tribute to a missing friend.

Several hundred people were expected to fill St. Aidan's Church, Ucluelet, to overflow.

They were there to honor the man whose voice echoed through the same church only two weeks ago.

Then, the Rev. Stuart Schoberg was very much alive.

DEDICATED MAN

In the words of one member of the congregation: "He was a most outstanding, dedicated and highly esteemed clergyman."

Today, Stuart Schoberg is presumed dead.

All evidence points to him dying March 27 while making a boat trip to visit parishioners in Tofino.

At some time on the 22-mile trip from Ucluelet his boat became swamped and he was washed overboard.

The water-filled boat was found three days later.

Numerous searches of the raggy coastline by members of the congregation have failed to locate the body.

Today's memorial service for the father of two young children brought visiting ministers from Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Friend of the family, the Rev. Dr. Robert Henderson, of Vancouver, paid last respects to his colleague.

Assisted by other ministers he conducted what is believed to be the largest memorial service ever held on Vancouver Island's west coast.

In three months time Stuart Schoberg was to have taken his wife and family to England on a fellowship.

In his mid-thirties, he took over Ucluelet and Tofino United Churches in 1962, after being ordained in Victoria.

BAIL RAISED TO $1,000 FOR TWO MEN

Bail was doubled this morning for two men when they appeared in city court charged with three counts of unlawful possession of stolen goods.

Mihaly Molnar and Janos Puskas, both of 1020 Catherine street, earlier had bail set at $500 when they appeared on a breaking and entering charge.

Bail was raised to $1,000 this morning after the three new counts of possession were laid against them. The charges refer to plumbing fixtures, workmen's tools and gasoline. Magistrate William Ostler fixed April 21 for date of trial.

Moore Blames Uvic Head For 'Walkout'

Union leader Jack Moore today blamed the president of the University of Victoria for his decision to quit as labor chairman of the Three Universities Capital Fund.

Mr. Moore said Dr. Malcolm Taylor had opposed an application by the Canadian Union of Public Employees to be bargaining agent for worker groups on the Victoria campus.

Mr. Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (I.W.O.A.), released the text of his letter of resignation to R. W. Robinson, chairman of the fund.

It had been speculated that Mr. Moore quit over an expected increase in tuition fees. This was the reason given for the earlier resignation of Murray DREW, president of the I.W.O.A. Victoria local.

'SQUELCHED'

Mr. Moore said he had worked for approval by the B.C. Federation of Labor of an annual $2 checkoff by trade union members for capital expansion and labor scholarships. But the enthusiasm of labor leaders for this project "had been effectively squelched" by Dr. Taylor's opposition to CUPE, Mr. Moore said in his letter.

Goal of the fund is $28,000,000 for capital development of the University of B.C., University of Victoria and the new Simon Fraser University, due to open this Fall in Burnaby.

'Extravagant' Landscaping Hit By Firm

The proposed landscaping at Saanich's new municipal hall was described today as "lavish and extravagant beyond any comparison."

"The costs are too high as a result and we are blamed instead of those who are responsible," said city contractor George Wheaton.

His company made an unofficial bid of $208,000 to handle the landscaping job at the Vernon Avenue hall now being built.

This compared with an estimate of $97,000 by architect Phillip Tattersfield of Vancouver.

The landscaping involves parking, gardens, plants, fountains, ornamental lighting and other work at the hall, itself costing about $700,000.

BID REJECTED

Mr. Wheaton's quotation was rejected by Saanich which decided to go ahead itself with the project on a piece-by-piece basis, completing enough of it to enable the hall to open on time in the late summer.

Coun. William Campbell, himself a contractor, said it was obvious Mr. Wheaton guessed at some of his figures and thought if the municipality handled the job the cost will not exceed the $97,000 estimate.

"An examination of the facts will disclose how foolish his statement is," Mr. Wheaton wrote in a letter to Saanich council.

"The sub trades alone amount to more than this figure."

He listed prices quoted by sub contractors and they amounted to $91,975. With the contractor's 10 per cent fee, the figure was $101,175.

It was "patent nonsense" to suggest the landscaping could be done within the $97,000 estimate.

QUOTE EXCLUDED

One sub trade quotation not included in the breakdown was $9,400 for sculptural elements in the fountain.

"We did not consider that such a lavish expenditure was worth serious consideration but it would add further to the total of sub trades inherent in the job cost," he said.

He denied some of the figures were guessed at. "He (Coun. Campbell) would seem to be under the impression that this is the way the contractors arrive at their cost figures," said Mr. Wheaton.

He did not suggest Saanich should forego good design and proper planning. Lack of this was "sadly apparent" in planning done by Saanich at the Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Mr. Wheaton said "much was made" of the fact he did not submit a formal bid on proper forms.

DELIBERATE

But this was done deliberately and explained in a letter to council. It was understood Saanich would not accept a bid of more than twice the original estimate.

"In our experience with Saanich we have received far too much undeserved criticism and abuse and we are not prepared to accept this without making public our objection," he said.

Navy Ship Movements

HMC Ships Mackenzie, Beacon Hill and Saskatchewan will arrive Wednesday in Victoria, Japan; due here May 13.

HMC Ships Fraser is in port at Pearl Harbor. Exceeding in coastal waters are HMC Ships Grille, Yukon, Sussexville and New Glasgow; due back Friday.

'MAC' SHOW HAD STIFF COMPETITION

Rival attractions were blamed today for an attendance of only 51 people at Monday night's opening performance of Twelfth Night in the McPherson Theatre. (See page 15.)

The TV presentation of Oscar movie awards kept many people at home and attendances were down at all movie theatres. But the symphony concert at the Royal Theatre drew more than 1,000, including season ticketholders.

The McPherson reported a slight improvement in bookings for tonight's and Wednesday's performances of Twelfth Night. But so far the theatre is about $7,000 short of the $8,000 guaranteed the Seattle Repertory Company by the city of Victoria.

ARMS FULL OF SAANICH GOLD, Wilf Cain plans to show President Johnson beauties of the Island.

Saanich Daffs Going All the Way to LBJ

United States President Lyndon B. Johnson will be surrounded with Saanich daffodils next week.

The occasion will be the annual banquet of the International Congress of Little League Baseball at Washington, D.C. And a Victorian will be presiding over the festivities, to which the president has been invited, next Tuesday.

It all began last year when Wilf Cain, 63, 1852 Taylor, the first and only Canadian to be elected to the congress, was recently named as its "speaker" or chairman. He will preside over 600 delegates from 23 nations, April 10 to 14.

To mark the occasion suitably, Saanich bulb grower Geoff Vantreigh donated 40 dozen daffs. They'll be cut Friday and another Little League, Ray Pierce, Vancouver, is having them flown direct to the congress.

Mr. Cain, district plant manager for B.C. Telephone Co. here, has been involved with youth programs since 1930. His first interest was amateur basketball. For 15 years he has worked with Little League Baseball.

He is credited with organizing Canadian championship tournaments and with arranging Canada's representation in the World Little League Series.

The Canadian tournament will be held in Victoria in 1966 as part of the celebration of the centenary of the union of the Crown Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia. B.C. centennial chairman L. J. Wallace has offered full support.

In 1967 the Canadian championships will be held at Montreal in conjunction with the 1967 centenary of Confederation and the World's Fair. This year they are slated for the Toronto area.

Ballot Asked On Fluorides

'Go-It-Alone' Move Starts in Oak Bay

By RON SUDLOW

An Oak Bay councillor Monday night served notice he wants the municipality's water fluoridated. Coun. Dr. Harold Carter gave notice of motion calling for a referendum.

He said today an informed electorate would pass the referendum "easily".

If council approves the motion, Dr. Carter said he will press for a referendum "at the earliest feasible date that is legal."

In 1959 a Greater Victoria referendum to fluoridate the area's water supply received only 37 per cent support.

A 60 per cent majority is needed.

"But," Dr. Carter pointed out, "Oak Bay had the highest percentages of yes votes."

He said the conversion of the municipality's water system could be done very easily.

"There are only two pipes coming into the municipality and the necessary equipment could be installed at a cost of about $5,000."

The cost per year after equipment would be two cents per capita.

In recent fluoridation attempts in B.C. centres, Nanaimo turned the proposal down by a 3-1 margin. Seven of 11 communities rejected the move last December.

This would be the first time any Greater Victoria municipality decided to go it alone on fluoridation.

"Several North American localities have noted some strange reason why nobody was experiencing cavities to any great extent," he said.

"But in the majority of the continent cavities are a necessary problem, particularly in children."

"And cavities were less where

$78,500 AWARDED RESEARCH

Three departments at the University of Victoria, biology, chemistry and physics, have been awarded grants totalling $78,500 from the National Research Council and the Defence Research Board.

In addition to the $78,000 which will be received in about a week, the departments have also applied for grants for major equipment totalling $91,000.

The research grants will support part of the direct costs of research being done by 21 faculty members in the three departments.

It will go toward the purchase of equipment, supplies and salaries for assistants.

None of the grant goes to the department professors directly. Their salaries are paid by the university.

All equipment purchased with the grant becomes the property of the university.

VARY GREATLY

Research projects being carried on in the three departments vary greatly and as a result the grants vary accordingly.

NRC grants are commonly supplemented by grants from the University of Victoria Faculty Research Fund and other grant-giving agencies.

Of the $78,000 the biology department researchers will receive $34,000; the chemistry department, $15,000; the physics department will get $29,000.

MAIN SHARE

The chemistry department applied for the lion's share of the $91,000 major equipment request. It is seeking $64,000 to purchase a nuclear spectrometer used to determine the structure of molecules.

The physics department is asking for $21,000 for two pieces of equipment and the biology department has requested $8,000, most of it to be used to purchase oceanographic research equipment.

Topics of the Day

Andrew James Wade of 1538 Beech Drive, Victoria, lost his driver's licence for six months this morning.

He was also fined $100. Wade pleaded guilty in Shawnigan Lake police court to a speeding charge.

He was checked by radar Mar. 27 on the Trans-Canada Highway doing 100 m.p.h.

Capt. William Gregory, 2861 Cadboro Bay Road, protested a park at Saanich council Monday night.

When Gyro Park was created from swampland drainage made his property a mire and killed apple trees, he said.

Said Coun. Leslie Passmore: "I thought you were coming here to ask us not to increase your assessment because we've turned the nearby swamp into a lovely park."

"I'd rather have the swamp," said Capt. Gregory.

HMCS Oriole, the navy's training yacht will participate in the first annual trans-Pacific race from here to Hawaii, it was learned today.

Nine yachts are expected to enter the 2,300-mile Pacific Northwest Trans-Pacific event.

The vessels will leave Victoria's Inner Harbor at 8 p.m. June 1, which follows the Swiftsure weekend.

Oak Bay council Monday night approved a petitioned request to change the name of Barkley Street to Barkley Terrace.

A careful check was made with property owners on the street and postal authorities before permission was granted.

Construction of an Oceanographic Research Institute at Colwood will not begin for at least two years, says George Chatterton, member of Parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Chatterton said before the construction can begin there will have to be a site survey carried out by the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys. Then a design for the research laboratory will have to be done and the shops will be jointly designed by the Department of Transport and the Mines and Technical Surveys.

A man who pleaded guilty today to having charge of a car while impaired was sent to jail for 21 days.

James Sorbee, Douglas Hotel, has a previous conviction two years ago for impaired driving at Sooke.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birckett said Sorbee was arrested Monday afternoon while sitting behind the steering wheel of his car in the 4-block Pandora. He had a blood alcohol level of 23 per cent when given a breath test.

The second evening in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery's Spring Art Film Series will feature European Art Films.

The evening program Wednesday at 8 will present Vincent Van Gogh, Dutch Masterpieces, Rembrandt, Stille Delft, Angelico, Ballet by Degas and Goya.

A limited number of tickets is still available at the gallery.

Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association will take a trip to the sanctuary Saturday at 2 p.m., meeting at the corner of Douglas and Hillside Streets.

Many species of wildflowers are currently blooming at the nature park.

Ask The Times

Q. If a man surrenders for cash a life insurance policy he finished paying for 25 years ago, does he have to pay income tax on this sum of money? J.W.

A. This depends on the year you purchased the policy and what type it is. See your insurance agent to see if the money is taxable.

Q. Could you please tell me how many languages there are in the world? S.C.

A. About 2,500.

Toyland Beckons All With Present Problems

By Penny Saver

My next-door neighbor and I were having a gossip session over the back fence yesterday, and she was telling me that her three children have been invited to a birthday party for one of the youngsters on our block. She was asking me if I had any ideas for birthday presents, not too expensive, but appropriate.

Well, what do children love more than anything else other than food... toys! And, Penny has found lots of wonderful items which are perfect for birthday presents because the expense will fit any budget.

If it's a birthday boy you need a present for, you'll find he'll love the new soldier and animal models I found. These are imported directly from England and are made of the new unbreakable plastic polyethylene.

Selling for 98 cents for a package of eight, these resilient little models come in soldiers, horses and knights and also zoo or domestic animals. They are completely safe for children.

Some people who collect soldier models will love these. The workmanship is so fine and exact, they look completely like the real thing!

For a little girl, there is the sweetest little doll imaginable that appeals to all the maternal instincts of a small child. Flexible, plastic forms the body, and the hair, shaggy and soft, is of a fine saran. The faces of these are really charming, complete with freckles and big smiles. Price is 98 cents for the small size and $1.98 for the large.

The much younger generation—crib size—will appreciate the new stuffed animals I noticed, selling at $1.98. Mom will too, because they are machine-washable and entirely safe for baby.

These cuddly soft toys come in dogs, lambs and every other animal dear to a youngster's heart. Some are of fluffy plush material and others are terry-towelling. Filling is foam rubber chips, making the animal completely safe to chew or play with. When the animal gets dirty, throw it in the machine and hang out to dry.

Birthdays coming up? Give me a call then, at 382-3151.

THE BETTER HALF

"See what I mean?"

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's never too late and it is never too soon to begin giving the complexion good care. This really should be a life-long project for women.

Not long ago in New York City the lovely blonde actress, Dina Merrill, who is starring in Bob Hope's new picture "I'll Take Sweden," spoke of her daughter, Nina. This 12-year-old is the youngest of her three children.

She said, "I have always stressed complexion care with Nina, even when she was tiny. She's been taught to keep her face scrupulously clean—with soap and water, morning and night. Diet is so important to a good skin so I rarely have candy or sweets around the house. Both Nina and my two boys have learned to prefer fruit."

What Dina Merrill said next will sound like a familiar tune to many women who read Why Grow Old? "My daughter is only 12 and she's already begun singing the usual teen-age refrain, 'When can I start wearing makeup?' Then she mentions someone else whose mother allows her to wear makeup. My answer to that is 'I'm not her mother. I'm your mother. No makeup!'"

However, Nina is allowed to select her own clothes which she does with surprisingly good judgment; born of practice, and a little guidance when she was younger.

BE SMART—

It has been said that as a woman ages, her neck grows shorter. Before you run to the mirror to find out, here's a little lesson in necklines if the answer is affirmative: Avoid high ones—turtlenecks are out! Have boat necks, soft Vs, cowls. Elongate!

Dina Merrill has successfully combined two careers, those of actress and mother. Some of her beauty secrets? She feels that the best formula for a lovely complexion, after cleanliness, are good diet, exercise and fresh air.

She also says that singing lessons are marvelous. They exercise the diaphragm and the face muscles, and are especially effective for the underjaw area and the chinline.

Miss Merrill concluded, "I'm lucky to have three very pleasant children, but when they do try my patience to the limit, sometimes, because they are normal, this is how I relax."

Diamond and Sapphire Earrings Given to Bride by John Carlos

Heart-shaped pendant earrings of diamonds and sapphires were the gift of John Wilson Carlos to Lynne Ruth Hilton for their marriage Saturday evening in St. John's Anglican Church.

Bride wore a gown of organza over tulle. Bodice was styled with Sabrina neckline and lily-point sleeves and accented with Alencon lace and crystals. Similar appliques enhanced the full skirt that opened to a wattle train at back. The full silk veil misted from a coronet of crystal droplets and she carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hilton, 3835 Diamond Street, and Mr. and Mrs. John O. Carlos, 4195 Tyndall Avenue. Mr. Hilton gave his daughter in marriage. Baskets of white gladioli and daffodils decorated the church for the ceremony at which Canon Robert Willis officiated. Organist was Kenneth Ansdell. A floor-length gown of pale gold, crystal-embroidered, with semi-full skirt, was worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Randall. Her pill-box headpiece was topped with a self-fabric rose and she carried a bouquet of white and turquoise carnations.

Bridesmaids: Mrs. Keith Nichol, Mrs. John Aasen and Mrs. Donald Bell, and bridesmaid, Miss Judy Allen, chose similar gowns in pale turquoise accented with matching rose-petal hats and colonial bouquets of gold carnations.

Miss Corinne Rickman was flower girl in a matching frock of gold. A tiny self-fabric rose hat was in her hair and she carried a basket of white carnations with turquoise.

All wore culture pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride: Bruce Begon, Campbell

DEAR ABBY...

Nay, Nay, Nay!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old working girl who is in love with Gary—a student in college. We have known each other for four years, and have been dating regularly for two years. Before Gary went away to college he was just like any other guy, but what college has done to him is terrible. It seems that every time I go out with him he tries to get me to go all the way. I keep telling him no, but I don't see how I can hold out much longer. I love him and he loves me. I don't want to date anyone else. All I want is for Gary to respect me. Please tell me how to keep him without giving in. If you use my letter in your column, please don't use his real name.

GARY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: If it's respect you want, keep right on saying no. Only louder! "Giving in" would provide Gary with the best reason in the world to drop you. If he is the man for you, there will be plenty of time for such intimacies after you are married, without the guilt, fear and shame that accompany premarital relations. And if he is not the man for you, you'll be glad you held out.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I should listen to my husband and mind my own business, but something inside me won't permit it. Here's the story: We bought this house last November and are making payments on it. The woman next door must be crazy. She beats her kids so bad I just can't stand to hear them cry and whimper. We don't speak, as she cussed me out the day we moved in and I stay clear of her. I can hear her screaming at those kids and knocking their heads against the walls and floors until it's about to drive me out of my mind. The neighbor on the other side of her says she hears it, too. The kids are never outside and don't go to school yet, so if they have bruises nobody sees them.

I have kids of my own and I know how mad kids can make you, but I hope I drop dead if I ever hit mine like she hits hers. I saw the people we bought our home from and they said that's the reason they moved. (NOW they tell us!) Is this my business or isn't it? Tell me what to do but don't use my name or city.

ROPE'S END

DEAR ROPE'S: Call your police station and find out how to get in touch with the welfare authorities in your city. When defenseless children are abused, it's everybody's business. The mother sounds sick.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the boy who was born with part of his arm missing, and his problem of how to answer curious people who wanted to know why, has prompted me to write to you.

I have two boys, ages 5 and 2, and they were both born with cleft palates, so I think I can speak with experience on this subject. I am constantly asked, "What is wrong with the boys?" My answer is simple, "God made them that way."

I quote from JOHN, CHAPTER 9, VERSES 1 through 3: "And as Jesus passed by he saw a man blind from birth. And his disciples asked him, 'Who did sin? This man or his parents?' And Jesus answered, 'Neither hath this man sinned, nor did his parents sin, but that the works of God might be made manifest in him.'"

These words have truly answered my prayers, Abby. I feel honored that God chose me to be the mother of these boys. I proudly sign my name and you may use it.

Alberta is well represented at the 35th annual Empress Hotel golf tournament being played here this week. Out of the 235 players, 150 are from the prairie province. Seen at Monday evening's reception which preceded a well-attended dinner and dance are, left to right: Mrs. Dick Hager and Mr. Hager, Edmonton; Mrs. Jack Timmins and Mr. Timmins, Calgary; and Mrs. Bill Rolston and Mr. Rolston, Portland, Ore. ## New Model Upstages Her Companions

CHRISTIAN DIOR WOULD LOVE HER

The model was petite and assured, pirouetting and posing with the ease of one who had walked the runways of the Parisian fashion houses. This was hardly possible... Shirley Warren is only five years old, but she upstaged everyone when the St. Andrew's Presbyterian guild groups held a tea and fashion show in the Kirk Hall Saturday afternoon.

Haute couture must have been in her kindergarten curriculum, for the clothes she wore placed second to none in the show.

Shirley grew notches taller as she displayed a pink and white seersucker suit that had a jacket in the new London look, complete with Chelsea collar.

With a touch of realism, the show opened with a pink poplin raincoat, made by Lydia, of Montreal and modelled by Eleanor Moilliet. It featured a hip-shooting Norfolk jacket and was teamed with an adorable pink plaid triangle, set on a band and bowed at the back.

Tobacco brown was mated with slate blue to form an unusual sheath, worn by Lorraine Travis. Made in London, it was flattered with a saucy Breton in rough textured straw that picked up the blue tone to perfection.

Pink was well represented but never better than in the cardigan coat and sheath dress ensemble chosen by Laura Miller. It was fully lined and complemented with a toning wide-brimmed Panama hat, banded in navy blue.

The old favorite... the shirt-waist dress... became party fare, made in silk and lined in taffeta by Jack Liebman of Fashion. Modelled by Frances Elford, its navy tones came to life with the help of a pink straw bowler, banded in a rich velvet ribbon.

of door tickets. Mrs. E. T. Holden and Mrs. W. Fulton were in charge of a home-baking stall arranged by CGIT members. The sum of $400 was realized.

Showing of China Benefits Children

Underprivileged and diabetic children will benefit from the program "An Evening with Wedgwood" being held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room. Proceeds from the affair, to be sponsored by the Gamma Phi Beta Victoria Alumnae Chapter, will be used to send the children to summer camp.

A film by the Wedgwood China firm and a display of various pieces will be shown. Refreshments will be served.

Tony Jordan and Jennie Pritchard compare racquets. Each likes to travel "with at least four" but Tony leans to a Gray while Jennie prefers the classic Slazenger.

Twang of His Racquet Is Threat to Beatles

By PAT DUFUR

Another male star arrived from Liverpool, Monday. Unlike his "townies," the Beatles, Tony Jordan prefers to wear his hair in a more orthodox style and the only music he makes is on a badminton court.

But the twang of his racquet is almost as effective as the famous four's melodies. It's raised him to the highest podium in world badminton. His partner, Jennie Pritchard, who came with him for an exhibition game in the Victoria Racquet Club last evening, was with Tony when they captured the world championship last year in London. This year saw them ending in second position.

When not winging shuttles across a court, Tony helps run the family garage owned by his parents. He's 30.

His 27-year-old partner lives at Epsom and works as a secretary for an engineering company in London. Both have been playing badminton for the past 15 years.

They're on a three-week "junkie" and are seeing Canada for the first time.

They both "fell in love" with Victoria. Says Jennie, "After the mid-winter of London and the thick snow we found in Edmonton, the flowers here are just too good to be true."

Jennie competed for the Canadian championships in Edmonton but was beaten out in the finals. "The shuttles seem to fly differently in Canada and it takes a little getting used to." She finds Canadian play a little different, too. "In Great Britain we play more touch badminton. The Canadians hit harder."

After an exhibition game in Vancouver this evening, the couple and their travelling companion, Robert McCoig of Greenock, will head for Toronto and finally, the United States championships in New Orleans.

Although Jennie has known the thrill of being a world champion in badminton mixed doubles, there's still one notch she'd like to add to her racquet.

"My ambition is to win the Uber Cup. This is the world championship for women's teams. I've been runner-up for two years and would love to make it on the third try."

Judging by her performance on Monday evening, the American-owned trophy is in danger of falling to the British, at least, temporarily.

Guest Speaker

"South America—a Continent of Contrasts" will be the topic when Miss Ulah Jacobsen speaks to the Women's Canadian Club on Friday. The meeting will begin at 2:30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel.

Supervisor of kindergarten and primary instruction in the Greater Victoria school system, Miss Jacobsen has travelled widely through Europe, Asia and South America.

FINAL TOUCHES are put on a bust of late U.S. president John F. Kennedy by sculptor Jacques Lipchitz in New York. Sam Newman, Knoxville advertising agency executive, said today he posed for the famed sculptor as he made the bust.

'Twin' of Kennedy Posed for Sculptor

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Sam Newman, Knoxville advertising agency executive who bears a striking likeness to the late president John F. Kennedy, said Monday he posed for a sculptor's bust of Kennedy that is to be placed in the Kennedy Memorial Library at Cambridge Mass.

Newman, a partner in the advertising firm of Lavidge, Davis and Newman, said the Spaeth Foundation of New York City had commissioned Jacques Lipchitz to do a Kennedy bust as a gift to the library.

Newman said a secretary to Arthur Schlesinger, a Kennedy aide, recalled seeing him at a Washington social function, and that led to him being chosen as the model.

Lipchitz was also commissioned by a London newspaper, The Sunday Telegraph, to do a bust of the slain president. The newspaper raised a fund of £13,500 pounds ($40,500) through subscriptions from readers for the sculpture.

In New York, Lipchitz said he had been sworn to secrecy not to disclose the identity of his model.

The Lithuanian-born Lipchitz, 73, said he chose his model from pictures submitted to him of two men who resembled Kennedy.

The sculptor said his model

NEWMAN ... chosen from picture posed several times and he completed the bust from photographs of Kennedy.

PTA Convention May Draw 400

The 43rd annual convention of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation will be held April 20 to 22 in Central Junior Secondary School, 1820 Fort Street.

More than 400 delegates are expected to attend the convention.

The theme is Education Research.

PET POINTS

By Dr. J. R. Emas

Can Owls Really Turn Their Heads Upside Down?

Yes. The short-eared owl has phenomenal flexibility; he can swivel his head in almost any direction.

CLINIC: Q. Can you tell me what kind of an animal a "slider" is? My cousin in Maine wrote me that he just got a pet slider, but I have no idea what it is. Do you know? M. D. McN., Knoxville, Tenn. A. "Slider" is another name for the little green turtle that most people buy in pet shops.

CLINIC: Q. What is the most beneficial terrarium temperature for my pet black snake? W.N.G., Jr., Clarksburg, W. Va. A. 75 to 85 degrees. Snakes require warmth.

CLINIC: Q. I have chronic sinus trouble. Out of curiosity, do cats and dogs suffer with this problem or is it limited to humans? Miss C.N.V. Anaheim, Calif. A. Yes, dogs and cats also have the problem. It's not as acute as with humans, but they too occasionally develop sinus troubles.

CLINIC: Q. How many clutches of young can parakeets produce a year? S.A.L., Sioux Falls, S.D. A. Parakeets can rear several clutches a year, but it's recommended that breeding be limited to two clutches in a 12-month period. This will minimize the possibility of over-taxing the parents.

CLINIC: Q. Sir Lancelot, my six-year-old Yorkie has developed a nervous twitch in his leg. However, it occurs only when he's sleeping. Is this something to worry about? B.E.L., Chickasaw, Ala. A. It's something to watch. This type of nervous twitch usually is the aftermath of a distemper attack from which the dog has recovered. If the condition worsens or becomes more frequent, consult your veterinarian for diagnosis and treatment.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jennifer Lynn Pollard, age 9, of Santa Maria, Calif., for her question:

What is a minus tide? When you visit the seashore you learn that tides wash up and down upon the beach. The water creeps up the golden sand until its foamy fingers reach high tide. Then it turns and flows back until the water level reaches low tide. Most places expect two high and two low tides every day of the week. The tides rise and fall on the sandy beaches and also in harbors and rivers near the sea. Sailors and seamen must know when to expect the tidal waters to rise and fall. At low tide the sea sinks and a dock or pier is often left high and dry above the water level. This is no time to bring in or take out a boat. A sailor also may have to wait for high tide to fill a shallow channel with deeper water. The tides cause the ocean to rise and fall. The tides are most important to seamen where the sea meets the land, for the tides are changed by the shape of the shoreline. The high and low tides are different in every harbor and bay and in every pier and dock. In every port where big and little ships come and go there are experts who tell the sailors about the tides in the area.

Measures Changing Tide

The tide expert measures and notes the changing tides all the time, for tides change throughout the months and over the years. After 22 years of patient measuring and noting, the tide expert knows just what to expect. He knows the depth of the lowest low tide and the height of the highest high tide and exactly what time they will come. He uses his notes and measurements to determine the midway depth between high and low water. This average water level is called mean sea level.

As a rule the tide expert tells us the depth of tide water above or below sea level. But sailors in port are more interested in the low tide because their ships are more likely to run aground in low water. So the expert pays special attention to the water's depth at low tide. He finds out the middle or average level of the water at low tide in his harbor. When the water falls below this level there is a minus tide. The lowest low tide in a year may be a minus tide of six inches or even a minus tide of two feet.

Generally the tides off Southern California range from minus two feet up to plus seven feet. But this year the low tides were lower than usual. In ports and harbors the low tide level sank lower than it had in 10 years. This past January some of the local low tides sank to minus two and one-half feet. This is 30 inches below the average level of the local low tides.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Tom Fasteland, age 13, of Duluth, Minn., for his question: Do we know the size of our galaxy? It would take a full page of figures to give the dimensions in ordinary miles of our wheeling galaxy. One light year equals almost six million million miles, and the galaxy may be measured in light years. One parsec is equal to 3.26 light years or somewhat more than 19 million million miles, and the galaxy may be measured in parsecs. The stupendous pinwheeling system of some 100 billion stars is so immense that figures can only approximate its size. From side to side, the tremendous circle is estimated to be somewhat less than 100,000 light years. It is thickest in the center where the crowded stars are most dense. Here the distance from top to bottom is estimated to be roughly 100,000 light years. Our galaxy is not quite the largest in the universe, but this great spiral nebula certainly is one of the most handsome of the thousands of far strewn galaxies we have discovered.

Act to Assist Poor According to Needs

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canada Assistance Plan to help the poor according to their needs will be proposed to Parliament after further federal-provincial consultations, the throne speech said Monday.

The speech opening the new parliamentary session said the plan will provide for federal sharing "in the cost of comprehensive programs under which people can be assisted on the basis of their need."

The plan, containing measures in welfare fields that the provinces have been demanding help with for years, will be discussed here later this week at a two-day meeting of Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and provincial welfare ministers.

Informants said details of the plan are uncertain yet because federal-provincial agreement to a new shared-cost program will be needed before the legislation is brought before Parliament.

The plan is intended as companion legislation to the contributory Canada Pension Plan approved last week by Parliament. Informants said the welfare subject has been discussed in federal-provincial conferences, and the idea of a general welfare program was approved by all provinces.

It is expected a Canada Assistance Plan would contain financial relief for the provinces in areas such as health care of needy people, mothers' allowances and administrative costs.

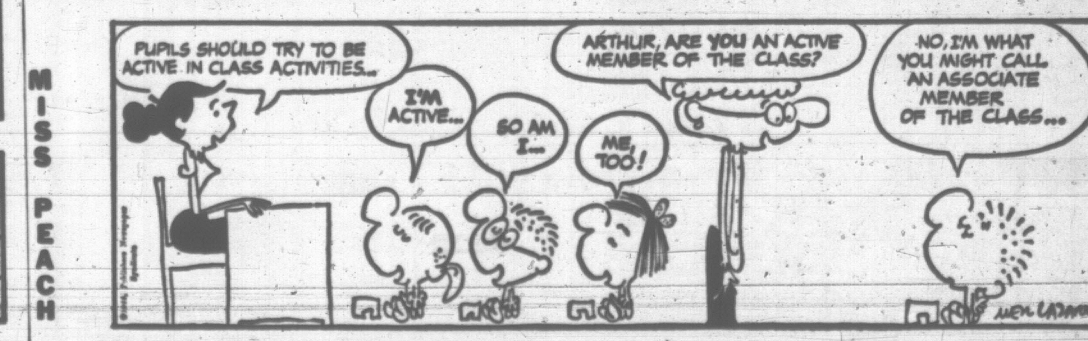

Informants say a general welfare scheme envisaged in the Canada Assistance Plan would do two main things — provide federal financial help in welfare areas not now covered by federal-provincial programs, and welfare on the basis of need instead of means.

120 Viet Cong Killed In Bloody Viet Battle

(Times News Services) SAIGON — More than 120 Communist Viet Cong were killed and six Americans were dead or missing today in one of the bloodiest engagements in the Mekong Delta in months, U.S. officials said.

Initial reports indicated that South Vietnamese government forces suffered more than 60 casualties, including about 16 killed.

The confirmed American dead were a U.S. Army officer and a U.S. Navy officer. Their deaths brought to 323 the number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since December 1961.

Four U.S. Army helicopter crew members were missing and believed dead. Their aircraft was hit by 50-calibre Viet Cong machine-guns and exploded in the air.

The helicopter had been providing cover for a downed South Vietnamese Air Force fighter-bomber. The South Vietnamese pilot's fate was not known.

A second U.S. Army helicopter was also shot down while covering the same crash. But all four crew members were rescued and were reported only slightly injured.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Heavy fighting was reported still in progress. The scene was the Ca Mau Peninsula, about 130 miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. Air Force B-57 jet bombers flew 16 strikes against Viet Cong in the area today.

Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, 32 American strikes were flown, making today one of the heaviest days of air operations in South Viet Nam to date.

A heavy haul of Communist weapons was reported captured at Ca Mau, including several recoilless rifles, at least four machine-guns and several score rifles.

The action began Sunday when 24 U.S. Army helicopters escorted by 13 armed helicopters landed rangers and regular South Vietnamese soldiers in several attack zones. They were met with immediate heavy fire, and a battle in the paddy fields has been raging ever since.

The U.S. Army officer, an adviser to a ranger battalion, was killed in the action Sunday.

Other heavy fighting was reported in Tay Ninh province, 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

In an operation that began there Monday, government forces claimed they killed seven Viet Cong and captured 24 shortly after a helicopter-borne operation was launched.

CLAIM 60 KILLED

The South Vietnamese defence ministry claimed 60 Viet Cong were killed in two battles in Binh Dinh province, where the government is trying to roll back massive gains made by the Viet Cong in December and January. Ten government troops were reported killed and 17 were wounded.

Government authorities at Da Nang, 380 miles north of Saigon, postponed until Thursday the public execution of a Viet Cong terrorist. They said the prisoner was giving information about Communist activities in the Da Nang area.

Police disclosed a plot to blow up Saigon's posh Caravelle Hotel failed when another Viet Cong terrorist who was to have carried out the attack gave himself up Saturday.

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — If there was one refrain running through the speech from the throne which Monday opened the third session of Canada's 27th Parliament, it was the decisive lean toward the political left displayed by the Liberal government.

The unfolding of the actual legislation over the next few months will show the extent to which this represents a genuine shift in the balance of power within the Pearson cabinet.

In the meantime, the list of their legislative intentions makes it clear that the Liberals have become concerned over the chances of an NDP surge.

To meet this threat, they have moved left along the spectrum of Canadian politics and appropriated most of the planks which might have adorned the Socialist election platform.

All Adaptations

The government's declaration of a war on poverty, its anti-automation plans, implementation of the Canada Assistance Plan, the preliminary but definite commitment to medicare, the fight against the high cost of drugs, establishment of the Canada Development Corporation — these and other proposals are all adaptations of NDP initiatives.

Such long-time NDP crusades as the limitation of elections were reported captured at Ca Mau, including several

U.K. Budget Hits Cigarettes, Beer

Working Man To Feel Pinch

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Labor government today presented a 1965-66 budget that will hit the pockets of nearly every Briton, particularly the working man who voted the socialists into power.

In its bid for austerity necessary to end the balance of payments crisis, the Labor government hiked the prices of liquor, beer and wine, cigarettes, vehicle tax and some other everyday items to an extent which even the gloomiest prophet did not foresee.

Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said his new taxes were aimed at bringing in an additional $459 million during 1965-66 and $607 million in 1966-67.

The budget cracked down on expense-account spenders and put new curbs on spending by Britons abroad.

Callaghan said the new taxes were necessary to bolster the confidence of Britain's creditors, who helped save the pound from threatened devaluation shortly after the Labor government took over in the Oct. 15 elections.

COSTLY N-BOMBER SCRAPPED

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government announced today its long-awaited decision to scrap the TSR-2 supersonic nuclear bomber, the most costly warplane ever built in Britain.

The announcement was made in the annual budget speech by treasury chief James Callaghan.

The plane had cost $125,000,000 ($375,000,000) so far and cancellation will save $25,000,000 ($105,000,000) of government money in 1965-66.

Callaghan said production of the aircraft would have diverted hundreds of factories employing thousands of skilled technicians from other work of national importance.

$1B Option On U.S. Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced today that the British government has an option to buy $1 billion worth of U.S.-made F-111 supersonic fighter planes.

The announcement came shortly after disclosure that Britain's trouble-plagued TSR2 supersonic jet bomber was being scrapped. McNamara's announcement said the British had an "option" to buy the F-111 — formerly known as the "TFX" — subject of a year-long Congressional investigation.

McNamara said he expected London to place orders for the F-111, a controversial 1,650-mile-an-hour plane, following a current British defence review.

Britain is the second country to get in line for the F-111.

Australia put in an order for 24 of the planes at a cost of $125 million.

Later Start For Playoff

The fourth game of the Western Hockey League semifinal playoff between Victoria Maple Leafs and Seattle Totems at Memorial Arena will start at 8:15 tonight — 15 minutes later than usual.

The new time is designed to accommodate fans who might wish to watch the National Hockey League televised playoff game between Toronto and Montreal. The telecast starts at 5:30, channels 2 and 6.

But Donald Freeburg, another Wayzata High English teacher, said he essentially agreed with the contents of the letter, although he imagined most teachers did not.

"Most teachers expressed great disbelief that someone would do it," he said. "A teacher with a family and other responsibilities just couldn't."

Hugh L. Coats Jr., father of four students at Wayzata High, three of whom have taken classes from Sarff, said the teacher's main intention was to make the students think.

"He goes a little too far, but we agree with him in principle," Coats said. "We may feel pretty much the same way — but don't have the guts to say it quite that way."

AILING from heavy cold and fever picked up in Paris last week, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson defied doctor's orders today to make brief appearance in Commons, but then returned to bed at No. 10 after answering questions.

Delaying Tactics Continue

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany closed Berlin's highway links to West Germany for the second straight day today, but opened them after 4½ hours, police reported.

The autobahns between the divided city and Munich and Frankfurt were blocked at the Berlin end and the Berlin-Hannover route was shut at both sides as the Communists increased pressure against a West German parliamentary meeting here Wednesday.

Meanwhile West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other Bonn politicians prepared to fly to Berlin for the meetings Wednesday, undeterred by a Russian warning that military manoeuvres might also affect air traffic to the divided city.

East German border guards sealed off the checkpoint of Babelsberg this morning, which meant no road traffic was able to leave West Berlin on the three superhighways to Hannover, Frankfurt and Munich.

Police said the Communist checkpoint at the West German end of the 110-mile Berlin-Hannover autobahn was also closed, bringing traffic to a standstill both ways on the main Berlin land artery.

WIRE BRIEFS

Airliner Missing

MIAMI (UPI) — A twin-engine DC-3 airplane with eight people aboard was reported missing today on a flight over the ocean from Port Au Prince, Haiti, to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Panic at New Tremor

MEGALOPOLIS (AP) — A new tremor shook the central Peloponnese today in the wake of Greece's worst earthquake in 12 years. The tremor was light but it caused panic among the survivors of Monday's quake which destroyed half a dozen villages.

Scrap Dealer Nabbed

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Controversial scrap dealer Charles Ghirardosi was arrested today when he refused "an order to leave his property and allow work to start on a new highway approach to the city."

'Believe Lamontagne' Lawyer Urges Dorion

(See also Page 13)

QUEBEC (CP) — Yves Fortier, counsel for Montreal attorney Pierre Lamontagne, today appealed to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion to believe Mr. Lamontagne's case "from beginning to end."

In a speech lasting more than two hours, Mr. Fortier summed up for the man who has accused four federal ministers of trying to bribe or coerce him into agreeing to release on bail of suspected narcotics conspirator Lucien Rivard.

Mr. Fortier said Mr. Lamontagne's evidence before the commission is based on material and corroborated facts which substantiated his story that he had received a $20,000 bribe offer from Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister.

On the other hand, Mr. Fortier said, Denis' story was based on testimony given by a murder suspect, three men with known criminal records, and the wife of an accused narcotics conspirator.

TEACHER BLASTS MUTUAL ADMIRATION SOCIETY OF MEDIOCRITIES

'Seen Enough of Living Death' Among Teen-Agers

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A young high school English teacher who says he has "seen enough of living death" in suburbia is quitting his job. He took a newspaper ad to blast teen-agers as "a mutual admiration society of mediocrities."

The Minneapolis suburb of Wayzata was still buzzing today over Douglas Sarff's burning criticism of its way of life. Sarff, a 20-year-old bachelor, has taught at Wayzata High for five years.

In a full-page ad in Wayzata's weekly paper, Sarff said the suburb's young people inherit "a shrill, hand-waving, convertible-riding round of trivialities... a blurred descent into oblivion, because having exhausted its substance by age 17, and knowing nothing else, they become bored with themselves, with others and with life."

Sarff especially criticized those teen-agers who "would rather eat pizzas, go to 'cool' dances, ride convertibles, try on the latest in ski-sweaters, and contemplate the busy social calendar for next year, when they will 'go collegiate'."

"I tell you, I have seen enough of living death. I have been able to absorb everything else — attacks from all sides, the indifference of slow learners required to take my course, even being dropped back a step on the salary schedule last spring — but the petrification of a once-vital young person is a sight so ugly that all my senses reel from it."

Some of Sarff's students supported his letter. Among their comments:

"You learn more from him in one day than you do from the other teachers in a whole year."

"Some of his ideas are a little wild for a high school. I agree with him completely."

But others said, "he's a real weirdo," and "I thought the letter was kind of crummy."

Two fellow faculty members split on judging Sarff's open letter. To 28-year-old James Lewis, chairman of the faculty club, Sarff "lives in a world of good books, fine music and excellent poetry. He should realize that the whole world just isn't filled with this."

But Donald Freeburg, another Wayzata High English teacher, said he essentially agreed with the contents of the letter, although he imagined most teachers did not.

"Most teachers expressed great disbelief that someone would do it," he said. "A teacher with a family and other responsibilities just couldn't."

Hugh L. Coats Jr., father of four students at Wayzata High, three of whom have taken classes from Sarff, said the teacher's main intention was to make the students think.

"He goes a little too far, but we agree with him in principle," Coats said. "We may feel pretty much the same way — but don't have the guts to say it quite that way."

Supreme Court To Study Indian Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Monday at Ottawa to look into the ancient hunting and fishing rights of Indians.

It made the decision in allowing the Crown leave to appeal a recent decision by the British Columbia Court of Appeal which upheld the right of two members of the Nanaimo Band to shoot deer out of season.

W. G. Burke-Robertson, appearing for the Crown, told the court that both the B.C. government and counsel for the Indians were anxious to have the whole matter of treaty rights on Vancouver Island referred to the Supreme Court.

While the court will be looking into the rights of Nanaimo Indians on Vancouver Island, its decision also will have a bearing on Indian hunting and fishing rights elsewhere in Canada, a court official said.

CLOSED SEASON

Clifford White and David Rob, two members of the Nanaimo band, were convicted by Magistrate Beevor-Potts of illegally having carcasses of six deer in their possession during the closed hunting season.

The Indians admitted killing the deer and having no permit. They said they were entitled to shoot the deer for food under a treaty signed in 1854.

The Crown argued that the paper signed in 1854 was not a treaty but a transfer of land between the Hudson's Bay Company and the Nanaimo Indians.

In dismissing the Crown's appeal, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of the B.C. Appeal Court said he agrees with lawyers who said the alleged offence occurred on land once formerly part of the ancient hunting grounds of the Nanaimo tribe.

The Indians' right to hunt on this land had never been abrogated or extinguished and is still in full force and effect, Mr. Justice Norris ruled.

CLAIMS BODY FORECAST IN SPEECH

OTTAWA (CP)—An Indian claims commission to assess and settle all Indian claims and grievances against the federal government was forecast Monday in the throne speech.

Establishment of such a commission would fulfill a promise by Justice Minister Favreau then the superintendent-general of Indian affairs—made in Winnipeg in 1963.

Mr. Favreau said then the commission likely would consist of a chairman with considerable judicial experience and two other commissioners.

He said Canada's 210,000 Indians comprise a proud minority group which like French-Canadians "refused to die and give up its struggle."

Hospital Trustees To Meet In City

Big Cut Ordered On School Wing

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board's $700,000 budget for a new vocational wing has been slashed to $425,000.

After hearing this Monday, trustee Will Dobson said: "What's the use of playing around with vocational education if we can't get enough equipment?"

However, the board agreed to go ahead with its submission to the education department.

Trustee Will Peck asked: "How can we offer the same program for $425,000 as $700,000? There's a danger that this is just a paper program. Either we were pretty lavish before or we are having to economize too drastically now."

CUT CORNERS

Chairman Joseph Frumento explained: "Originally we planned for the ideal situation. Then we saw how much money we were going to get and we had to start cutting corners."

The plan to go to the department is for two one-storey buildings to include an industrial shop area and vocational classrooms plus room for expansion.

Architect Hugh Farmer said the first phase of building would cost $320,000 and the projected second phase, $230,000.

Trustee Neil Dornum said it was "shocking" that it was going to cost $38,000 to rebuild part of Cowichan senior secondary school to accommodate the new wing.

URGENT

He reminded board members the vocational program is urgent.

The Chant Commission called for its introduction in September this year but even if Cowichan went full steam ahead now it couldn't be done before September, 1966.

Mr. Dobson said the education department is having a big say when it is only paying 23 per cent of cost. The federal government will pay 67 per cent and the local district 10 per cent.

Council Expected to Urge N. Saanich Incorporation

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Incorporation of North Saanich into a district municipality is almost certain to be recommended this month by an eight-man ratepayers' council.

The council, composed of two representatives from four North Saanich ratepayers' associations, has completed its study on forming a district municipality and other alternatives.

It has called a public meeting for April 21 to discuss incorporation. The meeting will be held in North Saanich Secondary School.

Dr. A. B. Nash, chairman, said a plebiscite to decide if the people want to run their own show could take place this year.

MOVE FAST

"Things will move fast after the public meeting," he said. "Once we know what the people want, the necessary machinery will be set up to hold a plebiscite."

Island Digest

He would not disclose the ratepayers council recommendation with regard to forming a separate municipality.

But public opinion in North Saanich seems to favor incorporation. This has been voiced by Northwest Mount Newton District Ratepayers' Association and other groups at Deep Cove and Lands End.

Other alternatives:

1. Amalgamation with Central Saanich.
2. Amalgamation with Sidney.
3. Amalgamation of North Saanich, Sidney and Central Saanich.

However, there is still a strong core of residents on the north end of the peninsula who still want to remain an unorganized district administered by the provincial government.

SHORT-SIGHTED

But a spokesman for a ratepayer's association said this is a short-sighted policy in view of problems which will arise from urban development in the next few years.

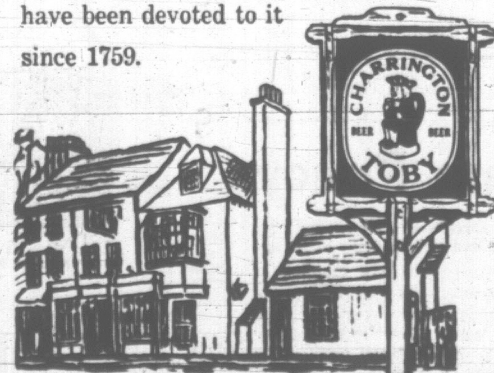

The only other alternative which seems to be gaining support in the district is amalgamation with central Saanich. This would eliminate the need to establish a municipal hall, hiring a staff and purchase of equipment.

But Central Saanich has been lukewarm towards amalgamation mainly because such a move would make the municipality responsible for providing water to the whole of the north end of the peninsula.

MILLIONS OF BOARD FEET OF LUMBER are awaiting shipment this month at Ogden Point. During March, 19,835,635 board feet was shipped out of city bound mainly for United Kingdom and United States ports. Figure was slightly below that of March, 1964, which reached 23,112,958. However, shipments are still above those of last year by about five million board feet and lumber exporters still have an excellent chance of surpassing the record export set in 1963. Total so far this year, not counting scow shipments to Vancouver, is 70,291,957 board feet. ## 1,500 Plead For Tilikum

The Keep-Tilikum-Free petition was being sent to City Hall today with more than 1,500 supporting names. G. R. "Rebel" Mowat, a city tour bus operator who headed a one-man drive to have the famed world-travelled dugout left on free exhibition, said, "Now it's up to the council."

"Not all of the people who signed the petition are Victoria residents—some of them come from Duncan and Nanaimo—and there may be a few tourists among them."

"But they are all people who love Victoria and who love Tilikum. They object to seeing her become a commercial enterprise," said Mr. Mowat.

"They may not all be voters, but there is a significant number of the people who made Victoria the community it has become named on the last. I hope council will pay heed to them."

City Hall today also received a letter from Mrs. B. F. Kuhn of Portland, Ore., the daughter of John Voss, the Victorian who sailed Tilikum on her history-making voyage almost 65 years ago.

'DEEPLY HURT'

"I am truly shocked and deeply hurt that anyone would have the audacity to commercialize the old canoe," she wrote. Her father would not have approved, she was sure, nor would "the good people" of Victoria.

Tilikum was displayed in Thunderbird Park until recently when it was moved by provincial authorities to the Maritime Museum which will open in the old Bastion Street Courthouse this fall—where an admission fee will be charged.

Mr. Mowat said he understands there is some reluctance by officials to consider moving Tilikum back to her old stand.

CARELESS DRIVERS

In city court today:

Harry McNair, 3876 Diamond, rear-end collision Douglas and Esquimalt March 28, $35.

John M. Proby, 1730 Townley, rear-end collision Hillside and Quadra March 20, $35.

Edward Hawes, 649 Dunedin, rear-end collision Belmont and Gladstone, $35.

or transferring her to the new provincial museum when it is built, because of the expense involved.

"If that is the only objection, I hope council will either ask the province to pay for its return, or failing all else let me know frankly that this is the stumbling block."

He suggested the necessary funds could be collected.

One petitioner has already sent him a small sum of money. Mr. Mowat has matched it and will send it to the Queen Alexandra Solarium, because no Tilikum fund has so far been considered.

Mr. Mowat and friends have volunteered to meet all expenses and provide their time freely to the campaign.

Court Promises Stiffer Penalties For Shoplifters

Two women shoplifters got off with fines in city court today but the magistrate made it clear it was only special circumstances that stopped him from imposing jail sentences.

Mrs. Velma Beecroft, 3229 Doncaster, was fined a total of $125 for two offences and a $50 fine was imposed on Mrs. Patricia Winder, 1535 Morrison.

Magistrate William Ostler told Mrs. Beecroft he was showing her leniency because she has a large family who would suffer if she went to jail. He also noted she has spent one week in jail awaiting sentence.

He said his remarks applied also to Mrs. Winder and added, "I must make it quite clear that this sort of thing cannot possibly be condoned."

The magistrate has warned recently that there is an "alarming increase" of shoplifting in this area and that he intends to impose tougher punishment.

BAIL RAISED TO $1,000 FOR TWO MEN

Bail was doubled this morning for two men when they appeared in city court charged with three counts of unlawful possession of stolen goods.

Mihaly Molnar and Janos Puskas, both of 1029 Catherine street, earlier had bail set at $500 when they appeared on a breaking and entering charge.

Bail was raised to $1,000 this morning after the three new counts of possession were laid against them. The charges refer to plumbing fixtures, workmen's tools and gasoline. Magistrate William Ostler fixed April 21 for date of trial.

Moore Blames Uvic Head For 'Walkout'

Union leader Jack Moore today blamed the president of the University of Victoria for his decision to quit as labor chairman of the Three Universities Capital Fund.

Mr. Moore said Dr. Malcolm Taylor had opposed an application by the Canadian Union of Public Employees to be bargaining agent for worker groups on the Victoria campus.

Mr. Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), released the text of his letter of resignation to R. W. Robinson, chairman of the fund.

It had been speculated that Mr. Moore quit over an expected increase in tuition fees. This was the reason given for the earlier resignation of Murray Drew, president of the IWA's Victoria local.

Mr. Moore said he had worked for approval by the B.C. Federation of Labor of an annual $2 checkoff by trade union members for capital expansion and labor scholarships. But the enthusiasm of labor leaders for this project "had been effectively squelched" by Dr. Taylor's opposition to CUPE, Mr. Moore said in his letter.

Goal of the fund is $28,000,000 for capital development of the University of B.C., University of Victoria and the new Simon Fraser University, due to open this Fall in Burnaby.

'Extravagant' Landscaping Hit By Firm

The proposed landscaping at Saanich's new municipal hall was described today as "lavish and extravagant beyond any comparison."

"The costs are too high as a result and we are blamed instead of those who are responsible," said city contractor George Wheaton.

His company made an unofficial bid of $208,000 to handle the landscaping job at the Vernon Avenue hall now being built. This compared with an estimate of $97,000 by architect Phillip Tattersfield of Vancouver.

The landscaping involves parking, gardens, plants, fountains, ornamental lighting and other work at the hall, itself costing about $700,000.

BID REJECTED

Mr. Wheaton's quotation was rejected by Saanich which decided to go ahead itself with the project, on a piece-by-piece basis, completing enough of it to enable the hall to open on time in the late summer.

Coun. William Campbell, himself a contractor, said it was obvious Mr. Wheaton guessed at some of his figures and thought if the municipality handled the job the cost will not exceed the $97,000 estimate.

"An examination of the facts will disclose how foolish his statement is," Mr. Wheaton wrote in a letter to Saanich council.

"The sub trades alone amount to this figure."

He listed prices quoted by sub contractors and they amounted to $91,978. With the contractor's 10 per cent fee, the figure was $101,175.

It was "patent nonsense" to suggest the landscaping could be done within the $97,000 estimate.

QUOTE EXCLUDED
One sub trade quotation not included in the breakdown was $9,400 for sculptural elements in the fountain.

"We did not consider that such a lavish expenditure was worth serious consideration but it would add further to the total of sub trades inherent in the job cost," he said.

He denied some of the figures were guessed at. "He (Coun. Campbell) would seem to be under the impression that this is the way the contractors arrive at their cost figures," said Mr. Wheaton.

He did not suggest Saanich should forego good design and proper planning. Lack of this was "sadly apparent" in planning done by Saanich at the Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Mr. Wheaton said "much was made" of the fact he did not submit a formal bid on proper forms.

DELIBERATE

But this was done deliberately and explained in a letter to council. It was understood Saanich would not accept a bid of more than twice the original estimate.

"In our experience with Saanich we have received far too much undeserved criticism and abuse and we are not prepared to accept this without making public our objection," he said.

Navy Ship Movements

HMC Ships Mackenzie, Beaton Hill and St. John's will arrive Wednesday in Victoria. HMCS Fraser is in port at Pearl Harbor.

Exercises in coastal waters for HMCS ships Giller, Yalton, Sussvale and New Glasgow, due back Friday. HMCS Grapple left here today for Vancouver. HMCS ships St. Theresa, St. Jean, St. Croix, and the sailing yacht, Gracie.

'MAC' SHOW HAD STIFF COMPETITION

Rival attractions were blamed today for an attendance of only 51 people at Monday night's opening performance of Twelfth Night in the McPherson Theatre. (See page 15.)

The TV presentation of Oscar movie awards kept many people at home and attendances were down at all movie theatres. But the symphony concert at the Royal Theatre drew more than 1,000, including season ticketholders.

The McPherson reported a slight improvement in bookings for tonight's and Wednesday's performances of Twelfth Night. But so far the theatre is about $7,000 short of the $8,000 guaranteed the Seattle Repertory Company by the city of Victoria.

ARMY FULL OF SAANICH GOLD

Wilt Cain plans to show President Johnson beauties of the Island.

Saanich Daffs Going All the Way to LBJ

United States President Lyndon B. Johnson will be surrounded with Saanich daffodils next week.

The occasion will be the annual banquet of the International Congress of Little League Baseball at Washington, D.C. And a Victorian will be presiding over the festivities, to which the president has been invited, next Tuesday.

It all began last year when Wilt Cain, 63, 1852 Taylor, the first and only Canadian to be elected to the congress, was recently named as its "speaker" or chairman. He will preside over 600 delegates from 23 nations, April 10 to 14.

To mark the occasion suitably, Saanich bulb grower Geoff Vantreight donated 40 dozen daffs. They'll be cut Friday and another Little Leaguer, Ray Pierce, Vancouver, is having them flown direct to the congress.

Mr. Cain, district plant manager for B.C. Telephone Co. here, has been involved with youth programs since 1930. His first interest was amateur basketball. For 15 years he has worked with Little League Baseball.

He is credited with organizing Canadian championship tournaments and with arranging Canada's representation in the World Little League Series.

The Canadian tournament will be held in Victoria in 1966 as part of the celebration of the centenary of the union of the Crown Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

B.C. centennial chairman L. J. Wallace has offered full support. In 1967 the Canadian championships will be held at Montreal in conjunction with the 1967 centenary of Confederation and the World's Fair. This year they are slated for the Toronto area.

Ballot Asked On Fluorides

'Go-It-Alone' Move Starts in Oak Bay

By RON SUDLOW

An Oak Bay councillor Monday night served notice he wants the municipality's water fluoridated. Coun. Dr. Harold Carter gave notice of motion calling for a referendum.

He said today an informed electorate would pass the referendum "easily". If council approves the motion, Dr. Carter said he will press for a referendum "at the earliest feasible date that is legal."

In 1959 a Greater Victoria referendum to fluoridate the area's water supply received only 37 per cent support. A 60 per cent majority is needed.

"But," Dr. Carter pointed out, "Oak Bay had the highest percentages of yes votes."

He said the conversion of the municipality's water system could be done very easily. "There are only two pipes coming into the municipality and the necessary equipment could be installed at a cost of about $3,000."

The cost per year after equipment would be two cents per capita. In recent fluoridation attempts in B.C. centres, Nanaimo turned the proposal down by a 3-1 margin. Seven of 11 communities rejected the move last December.

This would be the first time any Greater Victoria municipality decided to go it alone on fluoridation.

"Several North American localities have noted some strange reason why nobody was experiencing cavities to any great extent," he said.

"But in the majority of the continent cavities are a necessary problem, particularly in children. "And cavities were less where there is occurring naturally in the water a higher concentration of fluoride. "It seems logical to use this information to substantially reduce poor health and the fantastic expenses resulting from unnecessary dental cavities," he said.

"Fluoride water is the biggest benefit to children, he said, but added it is helpful in the treatment of osteoporosis, a softening of the bones in elderly persons.

SUPPORT
"Dr. Whitbread (merito health board chairman) has told me he will give me all the support he can."

"If all grandparents and parents turned out and voted for the referendum it would be enough to defeat the food faddists."

"They have all sorts of wild claims—that it makes old people's teeth drop out, causes cancer and interferes with a person's ability to think."

"They are all emotional claims and are not substantiated by medical evidence."

When Gyro Park was created from swampland drainage made his property a mire and killed apple trees, he said.

Said Coun. Leslie Passmore: "I thought you were coming here to ask us not to increase your assessment because we've turned the nearby swamp into a lovely park."

"I'd rather have the swamp," said Capt. Gregory.

HMCS Oriole, the navy's training yacht will participate in the first annual trans-Pacific race from here to Hawaii, it was learned today.

Nine yachts are expected to enter the 2,300-mile Pacific Northwest Trans-Pacific event. The vessels will leave Victoria's Inner Harbor at 8 p.m. June 1, which follows the Swiftsure weekend.

Oak Bay council Monday night approved a petitioned request to change the name of Barkley Street to Barkley Terrace.

A careful check was made with property owners on the street and postal authorities before permission was granted.

Construction of an Oceanographic Research Institute at Colwood will not begin for at least two years, says George Chatterton, Member of Parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Chatterton said before the construction can begin there will have to be a site survey carried out by the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys. Then a design for the research laboratory will have to be done and the shops will be jointly designed by the Department of Transport and the Mines and Technical Surveys.

$78,500 AWARDED RESEARCH

Three departments at the University of Victoria, biology, chemistry and physics, have been awarded grants totalling $78,500 from the National Research Council and the Defence Research Board.

In addition to the $78,000 which will be received in about a week, the departments have also applied for grants for major equipment totalling $91,000.

The research grants will support part of the direct costs of research being done by 21 faculty members in the three departments.

It will go toward the purchase of equipment, supplies and salaries for assistants.

None of the grant goes to the department professors directly. Their salaries are paid by the university.

All equipment purchased with the grant becomes the property of the university.

VARY GREATLY
Research projects being carried on in the three departments vary greatly and as a result the grants vary accordingly.

NRC grants are commonly supplemented by grants from the University of Victoria Faculty Research Fund and other granting agencies.

Of the $78,000 the biology department researchers will receive $34,000; the chemistry department, $15,000; and the physics department will get $29,000.

MAIN SHARE

The chemistry department applied for the lion's share of the $91,000 major equipment request. It is seeking $64,000 to purchase a nuclear spectrometer used to determine the structure of molecules.

The physics department is asking for $21,000 for two pieces of equipment and the biology department has requested $6,000, most of it to be used to purchase oceanographic research equipment.

Topics of the Day

Andrew James Wade of 1538 Beech Drive, Victoria, lost his driver's licence for six months this morning.

He was also fined $100. Wade pleaded guilty in Shawnigan Lake police court to a speeding charge.

He was checked by radar Mar. 27 on the Trans-Canada Highway doing 100 m.p.h.

Capt. William Gregory, 3861 Cadboro Bay Road, protested a park at Saanich council Monday night.

When Gyro Park was created from swampland drainage made his property a mire and killed apple trees, he said.

Said Coun. Leslie Passmore: "I thought you were coming here to ask us not to increase your assessment because we've turned the nearby swamp into a lovely park."

"I'd rather have the swamp," said Capt. Gregory.

Wings Call Up Spencer for Fonteyne

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings have called up Irvin Spencer from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League to replace Val Fonteyne, who will miss tonight's Stanley Cup semifinal playoff game between the Red Wings and Black Hawks at Chicago.

Fonteyne suffered a pinched nerve in his neck as Detroit took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with a 6-3 victory Sunday.

'Up to Parties Involved'—Chou

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant was reported to have received a message from Communist China's Premier Chou En-lai today suggesting that a solution to the Viet Nam conflict is up to the parties directly involved.

Diplomatic sources said Chou took the position that a settlement of the fighting is up to the people taking part in it and indicated that he meant the Viet Cong Communists in South Viet Nam on the one hand and the United States on the other—or alternatively South Viet Nam.

Lions Sign Martin to 3-Year Pact

VANCOUVER (UPI)—The B.C. Lions announced the signing today of defensive end Mike Martin, 24, to a three-year contract.

In his first three seasons with the club, the 6-foot, 3-inch, 235-pounder has developed into one of the outstanding defensive ends in the Canadian Football League, coach Dave Skrien said.

'Can't Wash Hands In Rivard Escape'

QUEBEC (CP)—Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, said today that neither the Canadian government nor Justice Minister Favreau can wash their hands for the March 2 escape of Lucien Rivard.

He told the Dorion inquiry that Canada's extradition treaty with the United States required not only that Rivard be arrested on narcotics conspiracy charges but that he be kept in safe-keeping until surrender to the United States.

Ford Foundation Quits Indonesia

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ford Foundation said today it has decided to close its operations throughout Indonesia "because of operating difficulties." The Ford Foundation has spent $12,100,000 in Indonesia since it established offices there in 1952. Most of its efforts have been toward teacher training, developing English as Indonesia's first foreign language and training clerical help for government service.

HEAD OFF NDP THREAT

Liberals Swing

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA—If there was one refrain running through the speech from the throne which Monday opened the third session of Canada's 27th Parliament, it was the decisive lean toward the political left displayed by the Liberal government.

The unfolding of the actual legislation over the next few months will show the extent to which this represents a genuine shift in the balance of power within the Pearson cabinet.

In the meantime, the list of their legislative intentions makes it clear that the Liberals have become concerned over the chances of an NDP surge.

To meet this threat, they have moved left along the spectrum of Canadian politics and appropriated most of the planks which might have adorned the Socialist election platform.

All Adaptations

The government's declaration of a war on poverty, its anti-automation plans, implementation of the Canada Assistance Plan, the preliminary but definite commitment to medicare, the fight against the high cost of drugs, establishment of the Canada Development Corporation—these and other proposals are all adaptations of NDP initiatives.

Such long-time NDP crusades as the limitation of elec-

'I've Seen Enough
Of Living Death
Among Teen-Agers'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—A

young high school English teacher who says he has "seen enough of living death" in suburbia is quitting his job. He took a newspaper ad to blast teen-agers as "a mutual admiration society of mediocrities."

The Minneapolis suburb of Wayzata was still buzzing today over Douglas Sarff's burning criticism of its way of life. Sarff, a 30-year-old bachelor, has taught at Wayzata High for five years.

In a full-page ad in Wayzata's weekly paper, Sarff said the suburb's young people inherit "a shrill, hand-waving, convertible-riding round of trivialities... a blurred descent into oblivion, because—having exhausted its substance by age 17, and knowing nothing else—they become bored with themselves, with others and with life."

Sarff especially criticized those teen-agers who "would rather eat pizzas, go to 'cool' dances, ride convertibles, try on the latest in ski-sweaters, and contemplate the busy social calendar for next year, when they will 'go collegiate'."

"I tell you, I have seen enough of living death. I have been able to absorb everything else—attacks from all sides, the indifference of slow learners required to take my course, even being dropped back a step on the salary schedule last spring—but the petrification of a once-vital young person is a sight so ugly that all my senses reel from it."

Some of Sarff's students supported his letter. Among their comments: "You learn more from him in one day than you do from the other teachers in a whole year."

Some of his ideas are a little wild for a high school teacher, I agree with him completely. But others said, "he's a real weirdo," and "I thought the letter was kind of crummy."

Two fellow faculty members split on judging Sarff's open letter. To 28-year-old James Lewis, chairman of the faculty club, Sarff "lives in a world

120 Guerrillas Die
In Bloody Viet Battle

(Times News Services)

SAIGON — More than 120 Communist Viet Cong were killed and six Americans were dead or missing today in one of the bloodiest engagements in the Mekong Delta in months, U.S. officials said.

Initial reports indicated that South Vietnamese government forces suffered more than 60 casualties, including about 16 killed.

The confirmed American dead were a U.S. Army officer and a U.S. Navy officer. Their deaths brought to 323 the number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since December 1961.

Four U.S. Army helicopter crew members were missing and believed dead. Their aircraft was hit by 50-calibre Viet Cong machine-guns and exploded in the air.

The helicopter had been providing cover for a downed South Vietnamese Air Force fighter-bomber. The South Vietnamese pilot's fate was not known.

A second U.S. Army helicopter was also shot down while covering the same crash. But all four crew members were rescued and were reported only slightly injured.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Heavy fighting was reported still in progress. The scene was the Ca Mau Peninsula, about 120 miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. Air Force B-57 jet bombers flew 16 strikes against the Viet Cong in the area today.

Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, 32 American strikes were flown making today one of the heaviest days of air operations in South Viet Nam to date.

A heavy haul of Communist weapons was reported captured at Ca Mau, including several recoilless rifles, at least four machine-guns and several score rifles.

The action began Sunday

'Believe Lamontagne'
Lawyer Urges Dorion

(See also Page 13)

QUEBEC (CP)—Yves Fortier, counsel for Montreal attorney Pierre Lamontagne, today appealed to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion to believe Mr. Lamontagne's case "from beginning to end."

In a speech lasting more than two hours, Mr. Fortier summed up for the man who has accused four federal ministerial aides of trying to bribe or coerce him into agreeing to release on bail of suspected narcotics conspirator Lucien Rivard.

Mr. Fortier said Mr. Lamontagne's evidence before the commission is based on material and corroborated facts which substantiated his story that he had received a $20,000 bribe offer from Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister.

On the other hand, Mr. Fortier said, Denis' story was based on testimony given by a murder suspect, three men with known criminal records, and the wife of an accused narcotics conspirator.

Fags, Beer, Cars
Will Cost More

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's Labor government today presented a 1965-66 budget that will hit the pockets of nearly every Briton, particularly the working man who voted the socialists into power.

In its bid for austerity necessary to end the balance of payments crisis, the Labor government hiked the prices of liquor, beer and wine, cigarettes, vehicle tax and some other everyday items to an extent which even the gloomiest prophet did not foresee.

Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan said his new taxes were aimed at bringing in an additional $459 million during 1965-66 and $607 million in 1966-67.

The budget cracked down on expense account spenders and put new curbs on spending by Britons abroad.

Callaghan said the new taxes were necessary to bolster the confidence of Britain's creditors, who helped save the pound from threatened devaluation shortly after the Labor government took over in the Oct. 15 elections.

CAPITAL GAINS

The government proposed a new capital gains tax which would bring in about $350 million a year. It also hit the expense account and "business lunch" spenders.

Callaghan said that except for entertainment of foreign buyers, expense accounts on business entertainment would generally be fully liable for tax purposes.

The move was expected to hit luxury restaurants, cabarets and private clubs which cater to the businessmen.

The chancellor also said the government planned to restrict the outflow of British capital abroad. He said such expenditures in 1964 accounted for almost half the record $2 billion balance of payments deficit.

Callaghan said business entertainment had reached a "scandalous" stage where the taxpayers paid $1.40 of every $2.80 on business entertainment.

Another government move was to smash the "unduly generous" capital allowance on business cars, he said. The budget withdraws the initial 30 per cent tax allowance for the purchase of a car used in business.

"1964 was a year of reckoning for a decade of mistaken policies, and false pride," the chancellor said to the cheers of Laborites. "I can see a program of reform stretching years ahead."

He said the government planned to reduce the outflow of capital by $280 million.

Callaghan said the new corporation tax would be about 46 per cent.

LIMIT UNCHANGED

The government plans to keep in effect the ban on spending more than $700 for journeys abroad.

The annual registration tax on cars is increased to £17 10s ($52.50) from £15 ($45) a year. Cigarettes will go up by sixpence (7 cents) for 20 on brands now selling at four shillings 11 pence (73 cents).

Those selling at three shillings and two pence (47½ cents) for 20 would go up by fourpence (five cents) a package.

COSTLY
SCRAPPED

LONDON (Reuters)—The British government announced today its long-awaited decision to scrap the TSR-2 supersonic nuclear bomber, the most costly warplane ever built in Britain.

The announcement was made in the annual budget speech by treasury chief James Callaghan.

The plane had cost £125,000,000 ($375,000,000) so far and cancellation will save £35,000,000 ($105,000,000) of government money in 1965-66.

Callaghan said production of the aircraft would have diverted hundreds of factories employing thousands of skilled technicians from other work of national importance.

Dief Moves
To Force
Gov't Defeat

OTTAWA (UPI)—Opposition leader John Diefenbaker, leading off opposition debate on the throne speech, today moved to topple the Liberal administration and force a national election in the first confidence test of the new session.

Diefenbaker, winding up a searing attack on the government's legislative program for the new session, moved a motion of non-confidence based on the "careless and indifferent neglect" of Prime Minister Pearson to take action to counter charges of serious wrongdoing in high government offices.

Diefenbaker declared that the throne speech failed to outline a detailed and realistic program to meet Canada's needs, and was most notable by what was excluded from the speech.

"The most conspicuous absence is a war of wrongdoing in high places," Diefenbaker intoned. "There is silence on an issue that has shaken the moral fabric of this nation."

Diefenbaker listed the series of charges and allegations that have rocked the Liberal government in recent months, ranging from the escape of ex-SIU boss Hal Banks from a five-year prison sentence, through the resignation of minister without portfolio Yvon Dupuis in connection with a shady racetrack application in Quebec, the questionable furniture purchases of two other Quebec cabinet ministers, to the remarkable escape of suspected dope smuggler Lucien Rivard from a Montreal jail.

$1B Option
On U.S. Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced today that the British government has an option to buy $1 billion worth of U.S.-made F111 supersonic fighter planes.

McNamara said he expected London to place orders for the F111, a controversial 1,650-mile-an-hour plane, following a current British defense review.

Britain is the second country to get in line for the F111. Australia put in an order for 24 of the planes at a cost of $125 million.
